These Fishing Flies Get Year's Prize Catch

The sporting goods' man who sold fishing flies "without the hook," wondered why ... "You won't catch anything" he assured these two attractive misses—Diana Michelin, 17, at left, and Isabelle Whisker, 17. What goes on? Well, here's the answer ... something new and different in earrings. "A lot of people have noticed and commented on them," they smile. Priced from 10 cents and up the fishing flies probably make the cheapest earrings in their collection. Isabelle who works at CKDA has 42 pair, Diana, at Hospital Insurance office, struggles by with a mere dozen. Moral: Fishermen guard your tackle. (Times Photo.)

Alberta General Election Called
By Premier Manning for Aug. 5

EDMONTON, June 28 (CP)—Premier E. C. Manning today announced that a general election will be held in Alberta Aug. 5. The Social Credit government, in office since 1935, will be seeking its fifth straight term.

Li-Gov. J. J. Bowlen dissolved the legislature, in which the Social Credit party held 49 of the 57 seats. Liberals had three seats, C.C.F. two, and there were three independent Social Crediters.

Nomination day will be July 22.

Premier Manning also announced that two cabinet ministers will not seek re-election. He said that Mines Minister N. E. Tanner will take an important position in private industry.

The Premier also said that Works Minister D. B. MacMillan will retire from public life on account of ill-health.

Premier Manning made the announcement following a cabinet meeting in his office. He said writs for the election had been signed by Li-Gov. J. J. Bowlen and the 11th legislature dissolved.

At the same time the redistribution Act was proclaimed. This bill, passed at the 1950 session, increases the number of seats in the legislature from 57 to 61. Edmonton will have seven instead of five, Calgary six instead of five and one rural constituency, Bonnyville, is created.

Alberta uses a voting system similar but not identical to the alternative vote procedure used in British Columbia June 12 for the first time.

In Alberta the single transferable vote is used in single-member constituencies and proportional representation is used in the multiple-member Calgary and Edmonton ridings.

Excluding Edmonton and Calgary, the alternative vote system has changed the outcome of balloting in only three constituencies since 1935. However, about 50 second counts have been necessary when candidates failed to show a majority on the first count.

In all four Alberta elections since 1935, the party that would form the next government was known election night.

Woman Stabbed To Death, Man Badly Injured

WINNIPEG, June 28 (CP)—A Winnipeg woman was stabbed to death and her husband critically injured today in what police said was believed to have been a murder and attempted suicide.

Mrs. Ruth Schmoutz was found dead in the hallway of a downtown rooming house, and her husband, Louis, was found in the basement, wounded. Police said he is believed to have suffered bullet wounds. Hospital authorities said he is expected to recover.

No motive for the slaying was suggested by police. A downstairs bedroom was splattered with blood when police arrived.

But it didn't.

Folks with week-end plans are hopin' it'll be I Am A Dry Canadian Day.

Th' R.C.M.P. git their man-an' a fair share of impersonators too.

SORDID DRUG
CASE BREAKS IN VANCOUVER

Police Allege
Ring Broken Up

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 28 (BUP)—Police in Vancouver allege they have cracked a sordid drug ring involving up to 20 teen-age school girls with the arrest of four men on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile.

Bail of $15,000 each was set for Jimmy Bergnach, 19, Lambert Thompson, 22, Caulder Hulbert, 20, and Steve "The Greek," 25, all of Vancouver, when they appeared in police court Friday to answer to the charge.

The case broke when a 16-year-old girl collapsed outside a rooming house. She admitted taking drugs and led police to Bergnach, who was sprawled on a bed in the house from which the girl had staggered.

A 15-year-old was traced later and admitted buying drugs at $5 a capsule from a man she knew only as "The Greek." Further investigation resulted in the arrest of Theohares, who faces an additional charge of selling drugs, and the other two men.

The two girls, one a stenographer, were not arrested. Police said both were from respectable homes and attempts would be made to cure them of the drug habit.

Several other girls, some from good homes and others known to underworld haunts, were to be questioned during the week-end and further arrests of drug "pushers" were expected.

Ottawa Orders
Arrest of Journalist

OTTAWA, June 28 (CP)—The Justice Department today announced the arrest of Raymond Arthur Davies, 44, prominent Canadian writer, for passport fraud.

Davies, a Montreal man who has travelled extensively in Russia and has on occasion professed sympathy with Communism, was charged with making "an untrue or misleading statement for the purpose of obtaining a Canadian passport."

A brief statement issued by Justice Minister Garson did not say where he was arrested but said he is being brought to Ottawa by the R.C.M.P. and will appear in magistrate's court here, probably Monday.

The statement gave Davies' original name as Rudolph Shohan. He was born in Montreal of Russian parents.

Davies, who speaks several languages including Russian, is the author of several books including "This Is Our Land," "Canada and Russia," "Arctic Eldorado," "Inside Russia Today" (1945), "Truth About Poland," and "Odyssey Through Hell." He is the co-author of "Soviet Asia," written in 1942.

Between 1943 and 1946, he was correspondent in Russia and eastern Europe for several press and radio organizations. He was the only Canadian correspondent in Moscow at the time.

STORM GOING; SUNDAY
SHOULD BE SUNNY, WARM

The weatherman went out on a limb today. "Sunday will be sunny, with only a few clouds around," he predicted today. "The storm that gave us cloud and rain is still moving south as expected, and skies will likely start clearing tonight. Winds will be light, and temperatures between 50 and 65 degrees."

"If you are wakened by a southeast gale Sunday morning you will know something went wrong," he said.

I.W.A.—Bosses
Remain Divided

Two Powerful Strike-Bound Unions Reported
Working on Labor Relations Board Proposals

Employers and 36,000 striking British Columbia workers remained divided today following rejection by employers' groups of Labor Relations Board plans to bring peace to the timber and construction industries.

However, two powerful unions on strike are working on proposals of the board to settle disputes that have close to 36,000 workers manning picket lines.

Although Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., spokesman for 162 logging and lumber operators, on Friday rejected a board formula to resume bargaining, International Woodworkers of America district president Stewart Alsbury said his 32,000-member union accepted the proposal with modifications.

At the same time the provincial council of United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, with almost 4,000 carpenters on strike, is taking a settlement plan to its membership.

"The board proposed to both groups in Vancouver that the following terms be considered as a basis for settlement—$2.10 per hour, free room and board on jobs away from home, and double time for overtime," said Victor Midgley, Victoria, international representative of the union.

Union Locals Being Canvassed
"We agreed to try and find a basis for settlement, and are canvassing our 38 locals in B.C. to learn if they concur in our action," he said. "They have already agreed in Campbell River, Courtenay and Powell River, and more meetings will be held next week."

The board suggested Friday the woodworkers re-open negotiations July 4 and that they continue until July 15. There was no suggestion the strike be called off in the meantime.

Forest Industrial rejected the proposal and suggested the board take some action against what it called an illegal strike.

Mr. Alsbury said his modifications "may well pave the way for future bargaining." His union has been on strike for 14 days.

Unanimous votes to strike were recorded Friday night in a government-supervised ballot among Victoria glassworkers, in two of three shops, members of a section of the Victoria painters' union. Employees of the third firm were scheduled to vote today.

INSIDE THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Critical
Juncture for G.O.P.

By JOHN GUNTHER

The first thing to say, looking into the exposed viscera of the Republican party, is that this make-or-break campaign is probably the most critical in its history. And for several reasons it differs strikingly from any other presidential campaign in recent years. As to wit:

1. For the first time since 1928—one could even say 1924—both conventions, not just one, are as open as a sword swallower's gut. For more than 20 years the American people have watched the campaign go into the home stretch with the candidate of at least one party unmistakably visible. But not today. It's a fight at both conventions.

2. For the first time since 1928 neither candidate is an incumbent of the White House. For the first time in six elections the major issue is not that of re-electing somebody. (Hoover succeeded himself as candidate in 1932. Roosevelt served four terms, and Truman followed Truman in 1948.)

3. For the first time since 1936 the Republicans do not know what they will be up against. When F.D.R. and Truman were running the opposition knew exactly whom it had to attack.

4. This will be the first election fought under the full, pitiless, impartial, and terrifyingly glassy eye of television.

5. Not since the McAdoo-Smith fight in 1924 has there been such intra-party bitterness on either side. The Taft and Eisenhower forces are slugging at each other, within the Republican party, fully as much as at any Democrat. The Eisenhower people say, "If you nominate Taft it means suicide." The Taft people say, "This is a struggle for survival."

The tactics of Taft supporters in picking pro-Taft men for all top convention jobs show that they take this struggle for survival in a highly personal way and are determined to preserve

Population Count Results
In Allocation Decrease

Loss to Victoria City of 3 per cent sales tax revenue through lack of correct population figures was set today at $45,573.

Premier Byron Johnson announced the shares of the tax revenue the municipalities are receiving for the fiscal year of 1951-52.

Victoria's share is $568,822. For the year 1950-51 the city received $614,395.

This city is not alone in the loss.

Several other municipalities also had been over-estimating population which is the basis for the tax return.

The census taken last year changed the picture. Despite the $45,573 drop in the city's share of the tax, the overall revenue for the year will be somewhat higher than that estimated by the city, Dennis Young, city comptroller said, on hearing of the total amount to be received. It may be anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000.

"We anticipated a drop in the revenue from this source due to the 1951 census figure," Mr. Young said.

ESQUIMALT HIGHER

Esquimalt is one of the big winners in the sales tax pie. Receiving only $54,908 last year, it will get $110,795 for 1951-52. Its December interim payment was $25,809 and its final payment this week will be $84,985.

Oak Bay's total this year is $133,680, compared to $124,992.

Saanich will get $324,897 for the 1951-52 period, compared to $285,219 in 1950-51. Central Saanich will get $24,944, compared to $7,466 in 1950-51.

Payments to municipalities this year total $10,363,077, compared to $9,511,343 in the 1950-51 fiscal year.

15 MILLS

The total payments represent about 15 mills over the whole province on the assessed tax value of municipal property.

Here's a list of comparative total payments to other Vancouver Island municipalities, with last year's totals shown in brackets:

Alberni, $40,260 ($29,682); Courtenay, $43,050 ($24,333); Cumberland, $11,837 ($12,126); Duncan, $32,902 ($34,454); Ladysmith, $24,734 ($23,179); Nanaimo, $91,339 ($78,158); Port Alberni, $92,199 ($84,185); North Cowichan, $79,052 ($63,559); Campbell River, $21,565 ($21,173); Comox, $7,138 ($6,453); Lake Cowichan, $16,276 ($9,249); Parksville, $8,878 ($4,305); Qualicum Beach, $7,708 ($5,065).

PILOT INJURED AT HILLIERS

An R.C.A.F. pilot was injured today when his Mustang plane crashed at Hilliers, about 25 miles northwest of Nanaimo.

R.C.A.F. spokesman in Vancouver said the pilot suffered cuts and bruises, but he is not believed seriously hurt.

Winch Deal Story Denied In Vancouver

VANCOUVER, June 28 (CP)—Denial was made here today that C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch and the B.C. Government Employees' Association had made an agreement on a five-day work week and collective bargaining rights.

A report from Victoria Friday claimed that Mr. Winch had informed civil servants that a C.C.F. government would give them a five-day week and the same collective bargaining rights as other workers. It said the C.C.F. proposal was made before the June 12 election.

"No discussion was held with Mr. Winch on this subject at any time," said A. C. Bennett, assistant general secretary of the Government Employees' Association. Mr. Bennett said the association was "strictly non-political" and a report that Mr. Winch had made a confidential agreement was "incorrect."

ocrats at 21.5 million, the Republicans at 18.5 million, and Independents at 15 million. If a candidate, to win, must get something over 27½ million votes, this means that the Democrats need pick up only six million independents, whereas the Republicans must pick up nine million.

Moreover, in the past five elections, the independent vote has been prevailing Democratic. No Republican can possibly win unless he makes enormous inroads on either the Democratic or the independent vote. This is not a matter of opinion, but of basic fact.

This, incidentally, serves to make somewhat ridiculous the recent outcries by Taft and others that Democrats have been voting for Eisenhower in Republican primaries, and that this is "immoral" and an "outrage."

If a lot of Democrats don't vote Republican in November, Eisenhower will be back at Columbia and Taft's address will still be care of the Senate, not Pennsylvania Avenue.

INTRA-PARTY BATTLE—The Taft and Eisenhower forces are slugging at each other fully as much as at any Democrat.

R.C.M.P. SEEK ARMED
NANAIMO HOLDUP MAN

An armed suspect is being sought by all island police forces following the hold-up at Nanaimo Friday night of a service station and a hotel.

R.C.M.P. at Nanaimo said the bandit held up a garage attendant at Nanaimo Motors and took $1. He then entered the Newcastle Hotel and stole $100 and clothing belonging to the occupants of four rooms in the building.

R.C.M.P. here said this morning they had received little in the way of details on the robbery.

DEATH PASSED BY

Dream of Passing On Fades; Mourners Quit

MIDDLEBORO, Ky., June 28 (UP)—Death failed to keep an appointment here.

James Longworth had predicted that he would die at 8 a.m. EDT (5 a.m. PDT). The 69-year-old member of the Church of God said he dreamed about the hour and date of his death three years ago. He said his dream had been confirmed later by a voice speaking to him as he prayed in the mountains.

A crowd of more than 200 persons gathered around his house. They spoke in hushed tones as Longworth's hour drew near. The elderly, robust man laid down on his bed—and waited for death to come.

But death passed Longworth by.

The robust little 69-year-old man already had bought his casket, arranged for pallbearers and selected song singers.

Longworth went to the Cawood Funeral Home two days ago and bought a casket resembling the one of his dream. The funeral director said the elderly man told him, "If I don't die I will give you $5."

But Longworth told reporters in answer to a blunt question on what would happen if he didn't die, "There is no doubt I will die. I am going to die. If I believed otherwise, I wouldn't believe the word of God."

Few in this town of 15,000 took his prediction lightly.

George Longworth, his youngest brother, who came here from Harrogate, Tenn., to "spend the last few hours with James," said, "I certainly believe he will die. My brother is too good a man for me to doubt his word."

Two sons, Howard and Shively, were more doubtful. They said, "Our father is a very good man and we've never doubted his word, but we don't really expect him to die."

Longworth, who looks as if he will live a good 15 years more, said his neighbors had been preparing "nice things for me to eat all week and have planned to give me a very nice funeral."

Reporter Jim Woolum of the Middlesboro Daily News said, "It's hard to believe, but talk with him five minutes and you have to leave him believing it well could happen."

But it didn't.

Longworth went to the Cawood Funeral Home two days ago and

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

MODEL MINING TOWN

MY RECENT TOUR of the south-eastern part of British Columbia gave me a welcome opportunity to see the progress that is being made all over this province, and to refresh myself with its beauty. The lovely lakes of the Okanagan and the east Kootenay country, set like limpid jewels in superb settings, the grandeur of the mountains in the Crow's Nest Pass area, reminded me again of the magnificent character of this province's scenery.

No wonder that British Columbia is drawing so many people here, not only for vacation purposes but to take up residence. Penticton and other towns in the Okanagan, for instance, are bursting at the seams under the pressure of population increases.

AMAZING HOTEL

I WAS PARTICULARLY impressed with the growth of Penticton, that bustling little town on the extreme southern tip of Lake Okanagan. Its new Prince Charles Hotel is a revelation of modern design, plus unexcelled comfort, that would put many a metropolitan hotel to shame.

It also boasts a magnificent new school, while new homes are springing up all over the place. The roads leading to it are lined with "motels" (awful word!) and auto camps whose design might well be copied on Vancouver Island. Instead of standing out like incongruous eyesores on the landscape, they and their gardens blend into the scenery with a delightful effect of belonging to it.

DARK MEMORIES

BUT WHAT IMPRESSED me most on the trip was the model centre of Sparwood, in the Crow's Nest Pass area, not far from the ugly mining town of Fernie. It is some years since I was in that part of the province but I still recall the grimy conditions under which some of the miners and their families lived in what was known, I believe, as Coaltown.

For years housewives whose husbands worked at the mines had to put up with the grime and soot from coke ovens and slag piles, and it defied even the most house-proud woman's efforts to keep her home clean. Added to that, many of the houses were mere shacks, of a size and style comparable to chicken houses in many instances. Not even the majestic beauty of the mountain backdrop could offset the grim housing conditions. In fact, it accentuated them.

MINERS' DREAM

IF I RECALL correctly, a sentimental song popular in mid-Victorian days was entitled "A Miner's Dream of Home." Well, the little community of Sparwood, which has sprung up two miles west of the mining village of Natal, comes as near that nostalgic ballad's theme as anything I know of.

It certainly realizes the dream of planners of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company. Started in 1939, when the company built six houses, by the end of this year it will comprise 75 attractive bungalows finished in gay colors, set in gardens which were ablaze with bloom when I saw them. Lots are sold to company employees for $1 each; outsiders pay $250 for similar lots.

PLAYGROUND PLANS

WORK WILL START this fall on a $425,000 high school, replete with modern improvements and abundant facilities for study and recreation, including a combination gym and auditorium. The project will also include a commercial district, well away from the residential area but easily accessible to housewives. A large, well-equipped playground is also planned for the youngsters. Eventually, it is hoped, Sparwood will take the place of Natal and Michael as a residential centre for miners and their families, and will be one of the model mining towns of Canada, set in a natural beauty spot of incomparable charm.

After seeing Sparwood in the process of making, I cannot help wishing that the example of the Crow's Nest Company could be followed by other concerns. It might do much to offset the understandable reluctance of young men to enter the mines and do the work which is so essential to Canada's industrial development and progress.

Rhee Backers Form Blockade Round Assembly

Keep Legislators in Till House Dissolved

PUSAN, Korea, June 28 (UP)—A mob of 500 shouting Korean Nationalist supporters of President Syngman Rhee, threw a human blockade around the Legislature Assembly hall today and refused to let feuding lawmakers adjourn until the assembly was dissolved.

One assemblyman was beaten severely as he tried to leave the building when parliament, after a stormy session voted to adjourn without taking action on dissolution proposals.

There were 103 legislators imprisoned in the hall when the mob of pro-administration councillors from South Korean provinces surrounded the building.

No one was permitted to enter or leave the building except six American newspapermen and photographers who were allowed to make telephone calls from a nearby office.

The 500 supporters of Rhee in his fight to dissolve the assembly shouted warnings to the lawmakers inside the parliament that they would not be permitted to leave until they made arrangements for new elections by voting to disband the present legislature.

The beaten assemblyman, Park Sung ha, was carried back inside the hall and cared for by other lawmakers. A doctor sent to examine Park was refused admittance to the building.

Police made no attempt to disperse the crowd blockading the hall. And late today the crowd still held the assemblymen trapped in the building.

Endicott Resigned From Church Six Years Ago, Commons Hears

OTTAWA, June 28 (BUP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson told the Commons today the United Church of Canada disassociated itself with its former minister, Dr. James Endicott of Toronto.

Endicott, chairman of the Canadian "Peace Congress," resigned from the ministry six years ago, Garson said. He corrected an earlier statement made in the House when he called Endicott an "ordained minister of the gospel."

Garson read a letter from the Rev. J. A. C. Kell, secretary of the Toronto Conference of the United Church, saying Endicott had written a letter of resignation from China on May 5, 1946, asking to be taken off the church's rolls with as little publicity as possible.

Kell said that Endicott's doctor's degree carried no legal weight. It was not withdrawn when he resigned from the ministry, Kell said, because it was standard practice to let a man retain the title except in cases of moral disgrace.

Endicott's letter of resignation,

M.P. SEES DIVORCE BILLS HIGH AS 'PEACE TOWER'

OTTAWA, June 28 (BUP)—Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre), told the Commons Friday night that in the current session it had passed a 455-foot stack of divorce bills in three hours and 45 minutes.

Knowles piled a copy of each of the 312 divorce bills adopted by the Commons on his desk, together with the 312 pamphlets of evidence taken in the Senate Divorce Committee.

Together they measured 15 inches high.

Now, he said, if that pile was multiplied by the 364 members and senators in Parliament, the stack would measure half again as high as the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill.

"It might be an additional tourist attraction in this city, if, when our tourists come to admire the Parliament Buildings and to admire the height of the Peace Tower, there could be on one occasion piled up for them that 455 feet of divorce bills and evidence with which we have dealt in the House of Commons at the average rate of one minute and two seconds per divorce," Knowles said.

Aussie General Strike Threat On Basic Wage

2,000,000 May Be Idle if Employers Win Test Case for 21 Per Cent Cut in Rates

SYDNEY, Australia, June 28 (UP)—More than 2,000,000 Australian workers raised the threat of a general strike today if employers win a test demand for a 21-per-cent cut in the nation's compulsory basic wage.

The employer move to cut wages and increase working hours brought bitter reaction from both moderate and militant labor leaders in the most highly unionized country in the world.

Labor has not issued any official call yet for such drastic action as a general strike. Its reaction will depend on a hearing before the government arbitration court August 5 when 25 major unions have been summoned to show cause why the wage cuts should not be ordered.

The test case has been brought by four employer organizations in the metal trades industry. The compulsory basic wage in Australia is roughly comparable with Canadian hourly minimum wage legislation. The basic wage is fixed for a 40-hour week but varies between states and major cities. All skilled workers earn more than the basic wage and many employers give special allowances in contracts with unions, as well as providing for automatic, recurring wage increases.

IN THE FEDERAL HOUSE

Commons Holds Extraordinary Morning Sitting to End Session

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA, June 28 (BUP)—The Commons scheduled an extraordinary Saturday sitting today in an endeavor to wind up the current session of Parliament by midnight, but it was regarded as a vain attempt.

Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) whip of his party, said it was "procedurally impossible" to complete the work of the session and go through the formal ceremony of Royal assent today. Adjournment of the session now seems likely to be postponed to the middle of next week.

The House still had a long list of contentious questions before it when it met at 11 a.m. today. Public Works Minister Alphonse Fournier, government House leader, said the Commons would sit until its normal adjournment hour, 11 p.m. If the work is not finished by then, members will resume business Monday morning.

Still to be debated are immigration policy, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation affairs, finance policy, and redistribution of parliamentary constituencies in line with last year's census, plus a number of minor matters.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said that when the session adjourned, it would stand adjourned until Nov. 20 and then would be asked to open a new session which would be adjourned over the Christmas and New Year holiday, and finish its work in time for members and the cabinet to attend the Queen's coronation early in June.

The schedule announced by the Prime Minister made it clear that the government had no intention of calling a federal general election until at least next summer. Members already are beginning to go over their electoral poll organizations in preparation for concentrated campaigning during this summer's recess.

AGRICULTURE BUDGET

The House Friday plodded about half way through Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner's $60,000,000 budget for the current fiscal year. The debate was sparked by brief, fiery exchanges over the government's handling of the foot and mouth disease outbreak in southern Saskatchewan, but little news was produced.

During the agriculture debate, Gardiner admitted that Newcastle disease had broken out in 12 flocks of poultry in Nova Scotia and 35 in Ontario after they had been treated with a vaccine which was supposed to prevent the disease. But he denied that there was any real evidence that the disease was spread by the vaccine.

Percy Black (P.C., Cumberland) charged that there were no cases in Nova Scotia which could not be traced either directly to an injection of the faulty vaccine, or to contact with a flock of hens which had been vaccinated.

Gardiner said, however, that the 12 Nova Scotian flocks were only part of 22 which had been given the vaccine. In Ontario, 371 were treated, and the disease occurred in only 35 of them.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By IRVING STRICKLAND and DON INGHAM

Brigadier John Rockingham has warned that Canadians may be too complacent about the threat of Communism to the high standards of living on this continent. Do you agree?

W. I. Shillington, grocer and confectioner, 3453 Quadra Street:

"I agree with the brigadier wholeheartedly. There is too much of a threat and none of us are sufficiently aware of it. I think, though, that it will be controlled throughout the world eventually, and I'm relying on our authorities to keep Communism out of Canada."

Mrs. T. Smith, housewife, 852 Reed Street: "He's quite right. Communism in the world is a serious threat, and I'm sure our standard of living could drop to what it is in Russia. Here in Canada we have our freedom and excellent education, and I think we should do everything we can to protect it. I know I'd rather be dead than live behind an iron curtain."

Pat Conroy, food market proprietor, 3197 Quadra Street: "I think the situation is much worse than we know. I have a friend who ran into Communism in a European country, and he says we have no conception of what the problem is. One of these days I'm afraid we're going to get the boom lowered on us. I think we can help right here at home by organizing and helping the government to show the people the danger we're in."

Mrs. H. Norris, housewife, 3123 Rutledge Street: "We are definitely too complacent. Everybody says 'let George do it,' but we've always been that way. We should do all possible to stop Communism and think the best way is to co-operate with our authorities. To protect our own country, I think vigilance on the part of the individual would be a great help."

J. Olson, mechanic, 4305 Douglas Street: "I don't believe Communism will ever be a threat to us right here in Canada. Canadians have too much foresight than to let it get a foothold. However, I think it is possibly taken a little too lightly by us in the world picture."

Truce Teams In Korea Swap Accusations

MUNSAN, Korea, June 28 (AP)—United Nations and Communist truce negotiators today exchanged notes through liaison officers. The Reds accused the U.N. of deliberately prolonging the war and the U.N. asked the Communists to verify location of four Red prisoner camps.

The Communists protested the three-day recess in armistice talks called by Maj. Gen. William Harrison Friday to give the Reds an opportunity to reconsider their stand in the deadlocked truce negotiations.

The note authorized by North Korean Gen. Nam Il said: "In disregard of the resolute opposition of our side and the world for an early armistice in Korea, your side once again unilaterally declared a three-day recess and rudely left the conference tent. This shows that your side is deliberately delaying armistice negotiations and prolonging the bloody conflict in Korea."

In an earlier meeting of liaison officers requested by the U.N. command, Harrison demanded the Reds "without further delay" verify location of four prisoner-of-war camps in North Korea. He said the Communist delay in replying endangers the lives of captured U.N. soldiers.

Pittsburgh Steel Settles Strike

PITTSBURGH, June 28 (AP)—The United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) and Pittsburgh Steel Company, signed an agreement Saturday giving 10,500 employees a 12.2-cent-an-hour pay boost, a modified union shop and other benefits.

Pittsburgh Steel, with five plants, is the biggest basic producer yet to come to terms since Philip Murray's 650,000 steel workers walked off the job June 2.

In addition to the wage increase and the modified union shop, the agreement calls for six paid holidays, three weeks vacation after 15 years instead of 25 years, and increases in shift differentials.

Meanwhile, there was no word of a resumption of negotiations with the industry's big six allies.

producers, U.S. Steel Corporation, Republic Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Jones and Laughlin Steel, Inland Steel and National Steel.

The union has been negotiating with the steel industry since last December.

LONDON EXPERIENCES HOTTEST NIGHT OF YEAR—72 DEGREES

LONDON, June 28 (Reuters)—Friday night was the hottest night of the year in London—72 degrees. This morning with bright sunshine the mercury headed for the 80's.

But the weatherman did not expect the day temperature to reach the year's record of 86 set May 18.

More than 66 per cent of the dwellings in Canada in 1951 were single detached houses. Canada's horse population in 1951 was 1,306,634, or less than half the total counted in 1941.

How to Wreck an Economy

MR. DREW EVIDENTLY PROPOSES to fight the next election on the proposition that Canada is exporting too many of its raw materials and manufacturing too few of them at home.

One result of the attempt to hold down such exports has been mentioned here before. If we are going to manufacture all or most of our own materials here, at high and non-competitive prices, then we must restrict the import of cheaper goods from other countries and they in turn will retaliate by reducing their purchase of Canadian goods. But there is another side to this argument which few Canadians have stopped to consider.

Listening to Mr. Drew, one might imagine that Canada has all the raw materials it needs, that it can make just about everything itself out of its own raw resources. As Mr. Howe showed Parliament the other day, this just is not true. We are vitally dependent on raw materials from other countries, and if we refuse to sell raw materials to them they will certainly refuse to sell to us.

Take aluminum, soon to be a huge British Columbia industry. We think of aluminum as a Canadian material which, under Mr. Drew's theory, we should manufacture ourselves right down to the last saucepan. In fact, there is not an ounce of Canadian material in our aluminum. It is all made of imported bauxite. We supply only the electrical power. If we could not import abundant supplies of bauxite our aluminum industry would instantly collapse.

Last year we imported $65 millions worth of crude rubber, which will not grow in Canada; $94 millions worth of raw cotton, which our climate will not allow us to produce; and wool worth $95 millions. Even with the development of the Alberta oil fields we are still dependent for two-thirds of our oil on foreign countries. In ten years, Mr. Howe thinks, we may produce half our oil requirement but even this is not certain.

A Day For Dedication

SPECIAL CEREMONIES AT Beacon Hill Park tomorrow will mark the observance of "I Am A Canadian Day." The occasion will give citizens an opportunity to express, by their presence, their appreciation of the life Canada has given to them.

It will be a time for humble thought of the advantages Canadians enjoy in a land that is rich under a system of government that allows them wide personal freedom.

It will be a time, too, to consider the newcomers—the individual and his family who have come to this country in search of a better way of life, where children may grow strong and free. And because "the consumption of petroleum in Canada is rising almost as fast as production in this country is increasing."

Mr. Drew lays down the cold-blooded doctrine that Canada should not export a pound of our metals not required for the defense or for the normal needs of our customers. He is appalled especially by our gigantic export of raw iron ore. The fact (which Mr. Drew didn't bother to ascertain) is that Canada today is importing more iron ore than it exports. It needs this particular foreign ore for its own steel industry.

If we export only the raw materials we think our customers deserve they will apply the same restriction to us. If they had done that in the past, as Mr. Howe observes, Canada would have been economically paralyzed. During the war the United States was acutely short of oil but did it keep all its oil at home, for its own convenience, and starve Canada? No, it allowed us just as much oil, proportionately, as it used itself. It has constantly done the same in the case of steel and coal that we needed.

In the war Britain, short itself, made sure that Canada got an adequate supply of sugar.

Under the Drew theory these nations would make sure that we got only enough materials for our defense program and for our normal needs. They, of course, would determine our normal needs. They would restrict us as they pleased.

Every nation in the world would suffer from this dog-eat-dog policy. None would suffer more than Canada because it lives on huge imports and exports. As its production grows, it will need still larger imports and exports and certainly will need the goodwill, the markets and the materials of friendly nations everywhere. In the kind of economic warfare which Mr. Drew proposes to launch under the slogan of "Canada First," Canada would be the first and the heaviest loser.

Entering On Forbidden Ground

PRIME MINISTER MALAN'S continued efforts to curb and restrict the citizenship of Negro and Asiatic people in South Africa have now brought about a widespread campaign of disobedience against "Jim Crow" regulations.

Numerous white South Africans had already indicated their strong opposition to the dictatorial trend of Dr. Malan's regime, and his strong-arm tactics against the Supreme Court which opposed his constitutional changes. The Torch Commando group had provided a focus for the resentment of many of the dissidents.

The present campaign marks the latest active and organized opposition of the other—and larger—part of the population. Stressing non-violence, hundreds of non-whites in various centres have entered railway stations reserved for Europeans, traveled in groups from one community to another without the permits and passes required by law, and in other ways registered their protest.

Arrests, now in the scores, could mount to the hundreds and thousands if South Africa's 10 million negro and Asiatic people widely support the movement. Prison accommodation would be taxed to overflowing and a very serious condition could arise, equal in effect to a general strike.

It may well be that Malan is prepared to cope with such an eventuality. But it is becoming increasingly obvious that he has taken on a struggle that cannot end in his favor.

The man who once openly admired Hitler is bucking a tide that is world-wide. He is bringing the standards of 1900 to bear on a problem that is a phenomenon of the 1930's—the rising demand of backward peoples everywhere to better their condition, to raise their standards, achieve control of their own affairs and find a more abundant life.

The process has been under way in India, Pakistan, China, Burma, Indonesia and elsewhere. It will proceed, through unrest, trial and error, suffering, even violence, until the movement is completed.

The wise 20th century leader recognizes this and seeks to guide the flow along democratic channels, easing this great transition. The lesser man does not, thus demonstrating the vast gulf between the statesman and the politician.

LOOSE ENDS

Just Ducky

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

MY NEIGHBOR, Mrs. Alfred Noggins, has just received from her sister, Charlotte, in London, a newspaper report of Mr. Churchill's latest speech, with Charlotte's brief British comment: "Isn't this just ducky?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Noggins. "It's just ducky. The way I read Churchill's speech, the Old Country is 'eadin' for another bust, the worst yet. But on this side of the ocean, we'll know 'ow to fix every-think. We'll tell the British to heconimize and cut down their livin' standard."

"IF THERE'S one thing we've learned to do better than anybody else it's to cut down other people's livin' standards. But not ours, no sir. In one breath, we'll tell the British and the Europeans that they've got to live poorer in the interests of the world's freedom. In the next we'll boast that our livin' standard is the 'ighest in the world but not nearly 'igh enough."

"And in the interests of the world's freedom we've got to 'ave more wages and profits, more cars and radios and everything else than ever. A cut in livin' standards is the solution to the crisis, but it ain't for us. It's for hex-por only."

"So by tellin' everybody to live poorer while we live richer we're certainly winnin' the war of ideas all over the world. It does make the foreigners love us. That's wot they call moral leadership."

"WELL, all the hexperts in Ottawa and Washington are fair bustin' to 'elp the foreigners only the figgers and statistics stand in the way. Any hexconomist can see that we've got nothink to give away on account of our foreign trade balance, exchange reserves and all like that. 'Tis perfectly clear in the ledger. But the trouble is Stalin can't read figgers but 'e 'as enough sense to figger that hexconomists won't win this kind of war, and that ledgers is no substitute for tanks and planes."

"WOT the hexperts is really sayin'. Of course, is that we can't give away anythink and still 'ave as much as before for ourselves. They don't need to be a hexconomist to see that. If I give away my eggs instead of sellin' 'em I'm smart enough to see that I won't get rich that way. I don't need a lecture from the government and the Bank of Canada. Those fellas can't tell me anythink about eggs and wot's more, can't even lay 'em. Anyway, we're not goin' to 'elp anybody if it costs us anythink but we're polite to say that out loud. It sounds better when it's wrapped up in statistics that nobody understands."

"BUT DON'T forget this is helection time in the States and twill soon be helection time 'ere and in helections you don't need to expect much sense. It's not sense that counts in helections, only votes. And the way to get votes is to cut taxes."

"Even a soljer as hignorant of politics as Eisenhower 'as learned that. So only a few weeks ago in Europe 'e was tellin' Congress that it mustn't cut down its spendin' on any haccount or it'll wreck the defence plan. And now, in the States, 'e's promising to cut more than Taft. That's not defence, it's politics."

"And in politics they can always arrange the world crisis to suit. Before every helection the world crisis improves somethink marvelous, conditions is suddenly better and the politicians can afford to cut taxes. Jest wait till the helection in Canada next year. You'll find the crisis 'as disappeared. We don't need much defence after all and can afford to cut taxes right and left."

"LAST spring Doug Abbott couldn't see any chance of cuttin' taxes but that was before the federal by-helections and a spot of trouble out in Saskatchewan and B.C. In the next year Doug will see a bright new light, and Drew will demand tax cuts while promisin' the Quebec mothers to double the baby bonus and the crisis will be postponed until after the polls close. The only trouble is, Stalin don't pay no attention to helections because 'e don't 'ave to. 'e don't pay no attention to ledgers either, but 'e's sittin' at the radio and larlin' 'imself sick."

Mr Peeps' Diary

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 23rd — Up betimes and away to school with my girl, and having business with Mistress Edwards. I chatted anon with Master Derek Erb, Master Derek Melville, Mistress Ticky Matson, and sported with an alligator toy, and found the company of these bright sprigs infinite pleasing. My lunch was a crab salad and strawberry pie, too rich for my gowte, but irresistible. I did walk all afternoon, talking with one or other: Master Charles Abernathy the athlete; Master Gavin Chisholm, the rose-fancier; Master Wally Hamilton, the carriage-house man; and many politicians who do swear and curse at the present state of things. By and by with many officers of the line to attend on a reception for Brigadier John Rockingham; and on being presented, I thanked him for his services to this country, whereto he replied: "Don't thank me, thank the men." A reply of great modesty, as befits this stalwart fellow, who was taller than his pictures bespoke. Thus to discourse with Master Percy Richards, who was full of praise for his chief, Master Johnson, the premier, and the gallant campaign he'd fought. So away to share a glass with Master Russ Burland and many genial friends from abroad; and by carriage with Master Andy Cowie through the streets. Thence to Craigdarroch castle, to join with Master Fred English, Master Charles Savage, Master Robert Wootton and Master Harry Hickman in meeting five young persons who vye for a scholarship in the amount of $250, disbursed by Lions in behalf of Master Horace Heldt. And these proved charming boys and girls, of surpassing talents, infinite grace and poise, and greater maturity than obtained in this land a quarter-century ago. So dushkily away to the baseball arenas, but the cause was lost. By carriage with Master and Mistress Robert Brown to the harbor, much marvelling at the vigor of this old cavalier.

TUESDAY, 24th — This day I took my wife's carriage-landau, it being open to the heavens, and had it laved, in expectation of a rally into the country. Which we made anon, and suffered a great bake about the noses and eares. It waxing infinite hot; and this was followed by unseemly chills, and great sneezes from the pollens adrift in the air. So to Sproat Lake to examine some work in a cottage and found it very pretty, indeed, and thus were loath to quit this lovely place. By and by to the Tidebrook hotel in the town of Alberni, nestled alongside a pretty stream, and there found many genial citizens: Master Andrew and Mistress Hilda Cowie, Master and Mistress Fred Hawes, Master and Mistress Tom Denny, Master George and Mistress Eva Warren, Master Conway Parrott, Master Duncan MacBride, Master Harry Young, and many more; and we were mighty civilly merry. So to a roadside hall to discourse of affairs with other friends of this island, where I met Master Pitt Clayton, the same impertinent, prating coxcomb that ever he was, and I love him dearly. And there was much noxious laughter in these halls when Mistress Hawes was urged to ascend a platform and play "The Queen," and she replied: "Has anyone the musiquette?" There being none, she staid in her place. So with Master William Chatwin, Master George Hillier, Master Irving Wilson, Master Jack Nicols, Master Norman Schroeder, Master Pat Maloney and many others to discourse of politics, which we did in the kitchen, which vexed the ladies to the marrow. And Master Clayton told of his assault on the remote precinct of Table Island, whereto he was the only politician to attend, and was greeted with vast tumult and acclaim; but the voting showed two votes for him, and nine for his opponent, which put him in crapulous frenzy. Thus away, somewhat brandled by this conviviality, and in high good humor to bed.

WEDNESDAY, 25th — Up this morning with a great ache in my head, and a feeling in my mouth that Cossacks were traversing it with cotton batten on their feet. So to a fine breakfast, and great lashings of juices, waters and toniques. By carriage away in magnificent sunshine to Cameron Lake, where I stopped by a waterfall for a drink of mountain water, demm'd fine, and to Shawangwan for an elegant lunch with Master and Mistress Hutchison, it being an omelet with strips of bacon and sliced onion.

Dyed In The Wool

New York Times

In France from now on it may not be necessary to ask questions to determine whether a person is an active Communist sympathizer or not. If he is speckled with blue dye he is a sympathizer and an active one. This will be because the police have been ordered to spray a dye on the participants in future street demonstrations. The United Press reports that they will find this dye "almost impossible to wash off."

So we sat drowsily if the suns and discouraged of affairs. By and by to the road, and I fell in behind a large carriage, full of school children, and was puzzled as a series of notebooks were ejected onto the highway, with great shouts of glee from within; and then it dawned that this was the last day of school, and noble traditions were being honored. So to the city, where I came upon Master Luther Branham strolling in the streets, and for the first time I saw this fellow smile, and he told me in my ear that he was hitting 305, and all was right with the world. So with a great lassitude in my bones home, to a slap-up snack of cheese and chocklet, and to bed with many papers by 8 of the clock.

THURSDAY, 26th — This day I listened to an address by Master Charles Cowan, in which he proclaimed that the skins of 80 per cent of the hot-dogs eaten in North America today were made from cellulose wood pulp, and not, as before, from the lining of a pig's stomach. A most intriguing and vital statistic, which undoubtedly accounts for the fact that, when spectators at baseball come to jars with the adjudicator, their bite derives from their bark. This evening I watched some quayle in my garden, and observed the male to be very jealous, and brisk in his dispatch of his rivals, and boastful in his song; which I found very pretty. Off betimes to the home of Master and Mistress Ron Newell, demm'd elegant, to attend on a showing of pictures by Master and Mistress Aubrey Westinghouse, of a journey through the Andes. Now here were gathered a cosy press of persons, and we joyed ourselves in these fine pictures, and the exquisite pasties of Mistress Evelyn, including a dish of strawberries fresh from her garden. So to stroll through the grounds with Master Newell, which he'd composed himself at back-breaking labor, and much admired his view of the sea, befitting a ship's master who'd swallowed the hook and repaired to great content ashore. So mighty civilly merry home and to bed.

FRIDAY, 27th — This day, having a great grumble in my gizzard, I took me off early to bed. But children screamed, and dogs barked, and as I made shift to slumber, methinks I heard the sound of musketry, followed by a child's tormented cries. So sluggishly to sleep, and I pray God this fowle depressing weather improves.

Bald Eagle of Northern B.C. Coast Lives High Both as Home Builder and Deep Sea Fisherman

apparently occupies the nest year after year. While the major construction takes place in the early spring sometimes sticks and other materials are added in the fall, long after the young have left the nest and before the old birds leave for the winter.

In the course of time old nests reach large proportions, perhaps six feet across and almost as high. Such a nest may, in fact, become so large and heavy that the tree supporting it falls down in the first winter storm. When this occurs the birds usually rebuild in the nearest suitable tree as if loath to leave the area to which they are accustomed.

To examine an eagle's nest is usually a major undertaking. Often it is in a tree difficult to scale without climbing ladders. When the nest is reached, perhaps a hundred feet or more from the ground, it is usually impossible to climb up over the edge; it is necessary then to tear a hole in the bottom and to bore a way through ignoring the debris which sifts down one's neck.

The parent birds, of course, are greatly concerned over the interloper's presence; they do not attack, however, but sit on a nearby tree-top or fly about, at a distance voicing their protests in a quavering, plaintive whistle, altogether lacking those qualities one associates with such a noble-looking bird.

Occasionally nests are in compartively accessible places. On Triangle Island, off Cape Scott, we found one on the ground, perhaps because no trees are present on this island. On Beresford, the following year, a nest was found in a sparse tree, only a few feet above the salmonberry tangle. Such locations are exceptional, of course; by far the greatest number of nests are beyond the reach of most egg collectors or biologists.

Two is the usual number of eggs laid. The youngsters which hatch from them grow rapidly but nevertheless require about 14 weeks before they are able to leave the nest. At this stage they are dark brown in color; the white head and tail feathers of the adult are not fully acquired until the third year of life.

Contrary to general belief, these birds are not bald in the sense of lacking hair (or feathers) on the head. Actually, they have as heavy a covering as most. Apparently these birds were originally called "Pie-bald Eagles," referring to their black and white appearance and in time this was shortened to the present form.

The main food of coastal eagles is fish, living, maimed or dead. This may be salmon in streams during the spawning season but at other times the catch consists of any fish ranging in size down to that of a herring.

When an eagle spots a fish in open water the bird usually makes a couple of tight turns above the prey, drops with folded wings to the level a few feet above the water, then on hovering wings plunges the long legs beneath the surface to capture the fish in its strong talons.

If the catch is a herring it may be transferred to the beak and swallowed while the bird is still in flight. If the fish is larger it is usually carried ashore to be eaten. Occasionally the prey is too large to be lifted from the water, in which case the eagle attempts to tow it ashore by heavy wing flaps.

If the bird becomes exhausted it rests on the surface of the sea with wings outstretched and still clutching the fish. With a struggle it may become partially air-borne again or it may continue flopping over the surface until it can drag itself and the fish on to the beach.

While it is highly unlikely that Bald Eagles will be exterminated in British Columbia they have been pretty well eliminated from urban areas much to the disappointment of bird observers. Even though the commendable attempts of the Victoria Natural History Society to have this bird placed on the protected list may someday be successful, it may be necessary to control their numbers where predation on spawning salmon is found to occur.

As Our Readers See It

INTERPRETATION

In your paper of Feb. 13 you published a letter from C. A. Cadwallader to which I would like to add a few words, with his kind permission. As he says, the Bible from cover to cover bears infallible proof—that it is the Word of God—that is, in the original languages.

Unfortunately, all its translators have not been infallible. An instance is "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world"—the word here used for "world" should have been translated "age" or "eon."

Again in Genesis I, 10, the word grass is a mistranslation—this gave some modernists the chance to say Genesis was not scientific, as there was no such thing as grass in those times—the word verdure would have been better. I was taught in my childhood that what we now call "mares tails" would have been better as that is one of the most ancient forms of verdure still in existence today. Again in Isaiah XL 29, one translator writes "O woman that bringest glad tidings," another has it "O herald of happiness," etc., while our authorized version puts it, "O Zion that bringest," etc. So you see it is up to us to "search the scriptures" with a good concordance.

(MRS.) ADELA P. BASTIN, 2168 Guernsey Street.

FED UP

When will some people like so-called "Fed Up Worker" realize there is a limit to how long hard workers will go on being ballyhooed into accepting nothing in the way of improving their own conditions.

Must we go on believing the scares, false shams and misplaced blames dished out to us by other small people and the legalized racketeers? Does Fed Up Worker for one minute believe that unlimited profit and very limited wages will help the pensioners and other fixed income groups?

I have one thing in common with Fed Up Worker. I'm fed up, too, with my brother worker who would sooner blame those of his own kind and let the legalized racketeer off scot free.

ANOTHER FED UP WORKER.

65% Three months ago I heard the following statement: "50% of the Quebec people can't write their own name."

Today the new statistics is 65%. Hurrah!

In three months 25% of the 3,500,000 from Quebec learned a lot! "Ce qu'ils sont intelligents, tout de meme ces Quebecois!"

Let's hope new decreasing percentage on this matter will come within the next six months so, at the end of 1952 there will be not a single illiterate in the old province.

I wonder why the minister of education in Quebec does not create a faculty, "special," of course, with bursaries for the new type of statisticians?

UNE ANCIENNE QUEBECOISE.

As one moves north along our coastline eagles become more and more numerous, especially in the vicinity of banks or fishing grounds. Here, where there is an abundance of food it is not uncommon to see 30 or 40 at one time, occasionally several miles from land.

Nests, too, are numerous; almost every headland or point is marked with a tree supporting a bulky structure made of sticks and dead branches.

Fresh material is added to the nest each season and the same pair of birds

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

A worship service with far-reaching influence in the solution of a pressing ethical problem will be held tomorrow in the little B.C. town of Grand Forks.

The service will be held in the open air, in an orchard bounded by fields of farm produce beginning to burgeon under the warm sun.

Participants will be members of several congregations from West Kootenay centres—and members of the Doukhobor sect who make their home in the Grand Forks area.

It will be the third of a series of services arranged by Protestant ministers and leaders of the orthodox Doukhobours. A Doukhobour group, including a fine choir, has joined twice in worship services held in United Churches in Trail; and the sect has sponsored one joint service at Brilliant, B.C., a Doukhobour community.

Tomorrow's service has been arranged at the request of Doukhobour leaders, who are concerned about a growing sense of tension in Grand Forks.

Christ—A Common Denominator

Principal reason for the effort to bring the Russian and Canadian communities together is a determination to demonstrate that they have a common denominator—Christ.

The demonstration is not only for the benefit of the more extreme members of the Doukhobour sect; many Canadians of other origins seem unable to grasp the fact that the Doukhobour problem is essentially one of religion.

Sunday's service will be held out-of-doors because that is the Doukhobour custom, a custom derived from a reformation which predated that of the western world by 200 years. The reformation which brought the equivalent of Protestantism to Russia—the Spiritual Communities of Christ (Doukhobours)—went further than the church revolution led by Luther, Calvin, Huss, and Knox. The Doukhobours burned their churches, and vowed never again to worship under a roof; they defrocked their priests and have never really recognized any human spiritual authority since.

Leaders Can Be Corrected

The Vergeins, revered as they have been as temporal leaders, have always been subject to spiritual correction by the humblest Doukhobour, and it was what some members felt to be defection in the Vergeins which led originally to formation of the Sons of Freedom, a sect self-dedicated to the preservation of the most fundamental of Doukhobour beliefs.

It is partly a wish to heal this rupture within the sect that West Kootenay Protestants are seeking to identify themselves with worship of the same Master.

A spring tour by a Doukhobour choir did much to better the understanding between English-speaking Canadians and Doukhobours; Protestant clergy and laymen are hoping for much more from joint worship services.

This column would not be fulfilling its function today if it did not offer to Dr. A. E. Whitehouse the thanks of a grateful community for his 15 years of ministry at Metropolitan United Church, and best wishes to Rev. W. Ray Ashford in his new charge at Calgary.

Acknowledgment of the esteem in which Dr. Whitehouse is held can be safely left to his own congregation, but wider expression should be given to the prayer which will go out silently but fervently from hundreds of others who realize that his work over the years has been great and good. It is a prayer that many years of rest and content may lie ahead.

For Rev. Ashford, we ask a long and fruitful ministry at Crescent Heights.

WEEKLY SERMON

Fulfilling the Law In the Way of God

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
The New Testament cannot be rightly understood without reference to the Old.

Christianity began with Jews, and it was a Jew, Paul, who was its great second-generation interpreter.

Deep and dominant in Judaism was the conception of the Law. One can see how large a part it has in the Epistles of St. Paul, and in his efforts to relate the Law to "the faith that is counted for righteousness" and to his conception of freedom in Christ.

In his recorded words and teachings Jesus gave no such elaborate discussions and expositions as are in Paul's Epistles. In plain, unmistakable words, however, He summed up the Law in two great commandments: to love God with all the heart, and strength, and soul, and mind; love one's neighbor as one's self.

But all was not contained in that simple pronouncement. Jesus amplified it with much concerning humility and service, and the essence of true greatness. Also, He brought to it an unmistakable illustration.

This was the Parable of the Good Samaritan, recorded in Luke 10. That a Samaritan, one of those with whom, racially and religiously, the Jews had no dealings, should actually be a better exponent of the commandment to love one's neighbors than a Jewish priest, or a Levite, was to put the matter in the most challenging way possible, and to assert in the strongest way that love in action meant far more than religious pretentiousness or any professed superiority.

Jesus did not mean to imply for a moment that a Samaritan was better than a priest or a Levite. As a matter of fact there was much warrant historically for the attitude of the Jews toward the Samaritans.

These colonists had brought their various pagan religions with them, but when trouble came upon them, as recorded in II Kings 17: 24-41, they had a Jewish priest come among them to instruct them in "the religion of the land."

The result was a corruption of Jewish religious elements with paganism. But this was not all. They refused to let Jews pass through Samaria on their way to their religious feasts, and they tried in every way to hamper and oppose the Jews who at a later time returned from Babylon to rebuild Jerusalem (see the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah).

Yet a man of that background, despised by the priest and Levite, who with their background and profession ought to have been the foremost in neighborliness, was the real man of love and compassion. It is character and action that count; not profession, or pride of heritage.

It is a parable for Priests and Levites, and for all "good Christians," who are not Good Samaritans in heart and action. Love is the fulfilling of the law.

HUMANITIES STRESSED FOR SCHOOL BOYS

Bruce Robertson
At Shawnigan

Study of the "humanities" before specialized study of the sciences was urged by Bruce Robertson, Q.C., in his address at the annual speech day of Shawnigan Lake School, recently.

Mr. Robertson, first head boy of the school, presented the prizes.

He described the school program during the days of the First World War and told of the rigorous discipline enforced.

In encouraging the boys to pursue their study of the "humanities" he said they afford knowledge of lasting benefit in the training of an "alert mind capable of thinking clearly and concisely."

A tribute to the founder and former headmaster of the school, C. W. Lonsdale, was paid by G. Peter Kaye, C.A., new headmaster. He referred to the outstanding service of Mr. Lonsdale in the cause of education.

Prizegiving ceremonies were followed by a service in the school chapel at which Archbishop H. E. Sexton preached.

J. P. Gaffney and G. R. Wilson were awarded proficiency prizes; P. J. MacInnes, sportsmanship cup; and B. A. Coates, sports challenge cup.

Prizes and awards were received by the following: Form VI (Grade 12), J. A. Strathdee; Form V Upper (Grade 11), T. A. London; Form V Lower (Grade 10), R. L. Obermark; Form IV (Grade 9), C. T. ## Better Relations With Public Needed Maintains Lawyer

DIGBY, Nova Scotia, June 28 (BUP)—A leading British legal figure has issued an urgent plea for members of the legal profession in Canada to establish a better public relations system with the public.

The president of the Canadian Bar Association—General J. A. Clark of Vancouver—told members of the Nova Scotia Barristers' Association meeting at Digby, Nova Scotia, today that lack of good public relations was a serious worry to the profession.

In reviewing the work of the Canadian Bar Association, General Clark said that the association had provided the opportunity for the profession to speak as one voice throughout the nation. He praised the efforts of the association in helping to further the education of its members and stated that when a law student receives his degree from a university, "his education on the profession has just begun."

Other prize-winners were: Roger Bernard, Strath Prize; Ian Hedley, McGoldrick; Blair Barmen, Kenning; David Ulrich, best all-round cricketer; Burke Cuppage, head of bowling averages; David Walker, junior cricket.

THE DOCTOR SAYS Victim of Headaches Should Keep Records

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Janet, a high school student, often gets a terrible headache just before examinations, and when she is coming up for an exam which she is afraid of failing, she may not even be able to take the test at all.

Robert C., a successful business executive, is likely to get a headache whenever he has some particularly delicate and difficult business conference ahead. Mrs. R. gets headaches after she eats shrimp.

A successful lawyer, who is working almost constantly with important matters, under great strain, gets severe headaches on one side every two or three months without apparent cause.

These are a few of the various kinds of headaches from which so many people suffer. Many of them seem to be quite definitely the result of mental strain or emotional disturbance. Some times, indeed, they serve as an unconscious way of avoiding dreaded or unpleasant tasks.

Sometimes they are the reaction to certain foods--as in the case of Mrs. R.--probably a kind of allergy--or they may be related to sinus difficulty or some other physical complaint.

For all these reasons the successful treatment of those who suffer from recurring headaches is not easy.

One common type of headache which has not been recognized for many years appears to arise from a relaxation of the blood vessels in or near the brain. In this type of headache the treatment consists of giving some fluid which causes the blood vessels to contract.

Indeed, there have been reports of rapid relief from this kind of headache merely by injecting adrenalin into one of the veins. Also, favorable reports have been made on the injection into the veins of a substance called sodium nicotinate (not related to the nicotine in tobacco).

DRUGS MAY STOP MIGRAINE
One of the most important kinds of headache is known as migraine. As a rule this type of headache is located on one side only. Before it starts the sufferer often has peculiar sensation. In migraine, drugs given just before an attack may stop the condition from full development.

In all cases of severe or repeated headaches, a complete history of the attacks should be taken. The victim of such a condition should remember exactly where the headache is located and how it comes on. For example, if headaches often start this factor may be an important clue.

1-Day Honeymoon Of Bride of 11 And Airman Ends
DENISON, Tex., June 28 (AP)—An 11-year-old bride was back home with mother today after a one-day honeymoon with an air force enlisted man.

Apple-cheeked May Kendrick, who will be 12 on July 19, and airman Sergio Maldonado Tristan, 21, of San Antonio, were married Wednesday at Sherman, Tex.

Her mother, Mrs. Cleo Kendrick of Durant, Okla., had police pick up the couple Friday.

"She looked more than 11 to me," said Justice of the Peace Jim Spangler who married them.

The bride's mother, who has eight other children, will meet with air force officials tomorrow to take steps to have the marriage annulled.

After his talk, he will answer questions.

The meeting is open to any persons interested in the allowances.

Honeydew Melon Propagator Dies
YONKERS, N.Y., June 28 (AP)—George H. Chisholm, 65, a gardening genius who once produced wine-flavored honeydew melons, died Friday.

The secret of his melons died with him.

A native of Wales, he was manager for many years of the lavish estate of the late Samuel Untermyer, a wealthy New York lawyer.

It was in 1939 that Chisholm managed to instill wine during the growth of the melons. He harvested them for a birthday dinner in Untermyer's honor.

Chisholm also developed a potato-tomato plant, with tomatoes on the vine and potatoes on the roots. He called it a topato.

MAN WHO WASN'T THERE Witness Supports Story Of Painter in Theft Case

Four defense witnesses testified in Saanich police court Thursday at Royal Oak during the hearing of a Brentwood painter charged with the theft of a $350 steel cable drum.

Harold H. Clarke, charged with taking the drum between Dec. 15 last and Jan. 15, from a spot near the Colquitz River in Saanich, testified earlier he had never been in the municipality during that period.

A business associate, Mary A. Borge, Brentwood, gave corroborative evidence. She said she had seen Clarke each day within the period in question with the exception of Sundays and holidays.

Court was told that the drum was taken from a construction job contracted by Norman Copley and was subsequently discovered in a machine shop in Victoria.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded Clarke to July 3 to consider evidence on both sides.

Deep Strategy in Minor Ball Loop

pitcher Bob Large, who has a six and one record, Mike Young and Doug Wilson. Oak Bay will be one of the clubs in the association knockout playoffs which start Sunday at Macdonald Park. See schedule of games, Page 10. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Solarium Derby One Month Away

By ROY THORSEN

Annual campaign by the sport fishermen clan to get a purseful of dollars for the Queen Alexandra Solarium—the institution that cares for and mends our crippled and sick children—got off to a big start Friday night.

Occasion is the sixth annual benefit derby jointly sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Victoria Daily Times.

The big fishfest will be held in Saanich Inlet July 27, just a month away.

First display of the prizes in the major fishing class was put in by Cy Bernard's sporting goods store show windows at 1410 Douglas, Friday night.

"There's at least $1,500 worth of prizes in that window," said Harry Woolston after viewing the fine display. Harry started the association off on the annual benefit for the crippled kiddies. He also noted "there are more prizes to be added."

FISHING PRIZES

Top fishing prizes in the classic have been donated by the Victoria Times.

The person who catches the largest salmon wins one of those $150 "oh so comfortable" Lazy-Boy chairs.

The Times has provided one of those dream kitchen articles—a de Luxe Mix-Master—as the prize for the female fishing entry catching the largest salmon.

The boy or girl entries, 16 years of age or under, will be shooting for the Times-donated racing bicycle, worth $70.

NON-FISHING AWARDS

It should not be forgotten that some of the best prizes are for non-fishermen.

Top consolation prize is a refrigerator. Second in this bracket is a $70 mantle radio.

Wes Fulton, co-chairman of this year's event, could not take part in the window-dressing set-sion as he had to attend a wedding ceremony.

However, he sneaked away for a few minutes and, after viewing the Bernard window, said:

"It's a great show and everybody should make a try for them."

Working on the derby display were Woolston, Dave Donaldson, George Douglas (club secretary), Herb Handyside, Andy (Albert) Anderson, Cliff Heglin (ladder derby chief), Wil Wilson, club president, still using a cane as a result of a kick-back from an old knee injury, also attended.

Burnside Takes Simmons Cup

Mrs. A. Stewart's Burnside rink captured the Greater Victoria Women's Lawn Bowling Association's Simmons Cup Thursday by defeating the Lake Hill rink skipped by Mrs. W. Peddle.

The interclub rink competition was played on the greens of Victoria's Bowling Club.

The victorious rink was composed of Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. L. Cook, Mrs. A. Holmes and Mrs. C. Staples.

Mrs. Peddle's rink had Mrs. E. Evans, Mrs. C. Webb and Mrs. W. Webster.

VICTORIA CLUB GOLF
Mrs. W. Erickson took the visitors' silver division award at invitation day at Victoria Golf Club this week. Mrs. L. G. C. d'Easum topped the bronze section. Silver division honors to home players went to Mrs. V. S. Godfrey, with bronze laurels to Mrs. S. Norris.

U.S. Olympic Athletes Crack Two Track Marks

LOS ANGELES, June 28 (BUP)—Half of Uncle Sam's Olympic track and field team sat in the stands today to watch would-be hopefuls battle for the remaining reservations on the plane to Helsinki in the wind-up of the two-day U.S. Olympic trials.

A sun-baked crowd of 12,341 watched Friday as the qualifying athletes set two new American records and equaled another in eight events.

The first three place winners of Friday relaxed with a crowd of 30,000 as nine more events, highlighted by a battle royal in the 110-metre hurdles and a ding-dong duel in the 400-metre dash, were decided today.

Talk of the first day's session was the 800-metre "grudge" race in which long-striding Mal Whitfield, the air force sergeant who got his education at Ohio State, redeemed a disputed victory from occasional Johnny Barnes in equalling the American record of 1:48.6.

Charles Moore skimmed the 400-metre hurdles to set a new American standard of 50.6, while ex-Penn State leather lugger Curt Stone easily whipped highly-regarded Wes Santee in a 14.27 in the 5,000 metres to set the other.

The Browning Version—With Tin Cans

By DENNY BOYD

The crowd had gone home, the players were showering and the Memorial Arena caretakers were sweeping up the litter a lacrosse crowd leaves behind.

In front of one of the side doors three men stood talking in muffled tones—talking about the 14-7 lacing Victoria Shamrocks had administered to the New Westminster Salmonbellies.

"I tell you it happened twice tonight," said Blackie Black, New Westminster coach and leading Royal City haberdasher. "Twice Severson just picked the ball up, turned around and threw a blind pass. Both times Browning caught the ball and scored. Those guys know what each other is doing all the time."

One of the other figures spoke up. "I used to live next to Browning in New Westminster and I know how he learned to pick those corners. He put up a practice net in his back yard and spent hours shooting at the net. Then he hung a jam tin in each top corner and concentrated on putting the ball in those cans instead of just in the net."

The third figure spoke. "Severson doesn't get the goals like Browning does, but I bet he could hit a flea in the ear with one of those half-the-floor passes he throws."

"And all those assists he's got this year—he sets Browning up and they both get a point on the play. What a pair!"

The words, spoken half in admiration, half in anger, were a tribute to a partnership that had its first roots established when Browning and Severson played against each other as 10-year-old cubs in the New Westminster Peevée League.

The blond bombers were far

from strangers when they first donned Shamrock sweaters last year. They had played on the Mann Cup champion New Westminster Adanacs in 1947 with Norm Baker, Arnie Ferguson and Darrell Popham.

They went east in 1950 to play for the Brampton Excelsiors and roomed together back there.

Last season, when the Shamrocks began looking to distant fields to bolster the club, Browning and Severson packed their bags and came to the coast. For a while it was tough and go whether Severson would be playing in Victoria or Vancouver, but the lure of the green sweater went out.

At the same time there were tales coming out of early Rock practises about a blond sliver who was ripping the net to shreds with his smoking side-arm shots. That was Victoria's introduction to Browning.

On the floor, they present a contrast both in style and personality. Browning can bruse a goalie from 40 feet out and rarely misses from the edge of the crease because of his magical fakes.

Severson has a deadly masterful touch around the goal and a handful of shots. Browning is quiet and seems embarrassed at the applause tendered him when he scores.

Severson is the holler guy of the club, keeping up a constant stream of chatter both on the floor and in the dressing room.

With Larry Booth as third man, the Rock first-string line has shown intercity Lacrosse League fans a terrific scoring punch this year.

What they want to do next is show Toronto fans that punch—in the finals for the Mann Cup, the biggest jam tin of the lot.

Peter Salmon Named To Olympic Swim Team

HUTCH, PARNELL LOSE

Women Pace Track Trials

HAMILTON, June 28 (CP)—A blonde little bullet from Toronto set the fashion Friday night in what is fast becoming the accepted mode in Canada's Olympic track and field trials.

Little Shirley Eckel ripped the 80-metre hurdles Canadian record to pieces in establishing the priority of women's rights for plane seats on Canada's Olympic bound contingent.

She was joined in a gala opening night of Dominion track and field championships by husky Mary Lawrence, another Torontonian, in the only successful assault on Canadian records.

Mary shattered a shot put mark that has stood for 20 years by hurling the eight-pound shot 40 feet 3 3/4 inches.

Don McFarlane, Hamilton Olympic club sprinter, and Jim Lavery, Calgarian, who performs for Drake University in the United States, were the only men athletes who could clip Olympic standards.

McFarlane edged Victoria's Bob Hutchison in the 100-metre final while Bill Parnell ran second to John Ross in the 1,500 metres. Hutchison runs in the 200 metres today.

The women had a flock left—and still in the running—in today's windup.

In addition to the work of little Miss Eckel and big Miss Lawrence, there were Dawn Josephs of Victoria, Alice Folz of Vancouver and Eleanor McKenzie, brilliant Vancouver sprinter.

BESTS STANDARD
Miss Josephs leaped 18 feet 1 1/4 inches in the broad jump against the standard of 18 feet.

The disappointment to the crowd of 3,000 at Hamilton's Civic Stadium was the late-night bid of little Alice Whitty of Vancouver's Arctic Club to beat the standard of 5 feet 1 inch. Alice, a persistent performer at practice throughout the winter, made it at 5 feet even. She already had the championship, but trying to reach the Olympic standard, an inch higher, she fell on her final jump.

Shorthanded Foul Bay In 10th Straight Win

Dressing only 10 men, Foul Bay still had enough victory serum in their veins to ring up a 14-7 victory over Jokers Friday night at Memorial Arena.

The win was the 10th in a row without defeat for the undisputed leaders of the Senior "B" Lacrosse League.

If Jokers ever had an opportunity of dumping their rivals, it was Friday night as injuries sustained in previous games cut the Foul Bay roster to a skeleton crew while Jokers had a couple of new players in harness.

The game was the roughest of the season, referee Ernie Ball and Doug Bray whistling 57 minutes in penalties. Foul Bay drawing 30, Big Elmer Mathews was the target of a major part of the sentences as he sat out a total of 19 minutes.

However, Mathews had the last laugh as he sniped four goals to win the scoring derby for the night.

Mathews was one of the key

Hank Blade Signs As Stamp Coach

CALGARY, June 28 (CP)—Hank Blade has been signed as coach of the Calgary Stampeder Hockey Club, it was announced Friday by Maurice Hartnett, manager of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede.

Seven B.C. Athletes On Tentative Squad

TORONTO, June 28 (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Swimming Association today announced names of 10 swimmers who probably will make up Canada's aquatic team for the Olympics at Helsinki next month.

President Bill Harwood said, however, in making the announcement that the selection is subject to approval of the Olympic Association, which will meet in Hamilton Sunday.

Those tentatively named for the team are: Peter Salmon of Victoria; Allan Gilchrist, Ocean Falls, B.C.; Gerry McNamee, 21, and his sister, Kay, Vancouver; Irene Strong, Vancouver; Leo Portelance and Lenora Fisher, both of Ocean Falls; Lucien Beaumont and Gladys Priestly, 14, Montreal, and Irene McDonald, Hamilton.

Officials said the toughest decision they face is whether to send a male diving representative to Helsinki. The men had refused to compete in 10-metre diving because they claimed the Toronto pool was too shallow.

THESE WERE THE STARS

Stars of the meet were 14-year-old Gladys Priestley of Montreal Y.M.C.A., and Gerry McNamee, 21, of Vancouver, who finished with three broken records each. Two records each were achieved by Gerry's sister, Kay, of Vancouver; Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls, B.C., and Irene Strong, breast stroke expert from Vancouver. Peter Salmon of Victoria and Leo Portelance of Ocean Falls, B.C., copped one record each.

Vancouver's Amateur Swim Club relay teams took three championships and teams from Toronto West End and Montreal Y.M.C.A.'s captured one each.

While Miss Priestley was the east's only star, powerful swimmers from the west blasted record after record. The final tally stood at 14 records for the west while the east settled for five.

In the 400-yard men's freestyle, Gerry McNamee of Vancouver churned down the home stretch to hit a record 4:19.4, bettering the 1950 mark of 4:21.1 set by a fellow westerner, Allen Gilchrist.

In the last lap of the final Gilchrist finished just a half a body-length behind McNamee as he set the new mark of 4:18.9.

a western runaway. Peter Salmon of Victoria topped the 14-year record of Toronto's Jim Prentice with 1:03.5 in the men's 100-yard breaststroke. Irene Strong set a new mark of 2:44.3 in the 200-yard breaststroke, chopping five seconds off her previous record set this year. A team of the Vancouver Swim Club beat three eastern groups in 3:43 in the men's 400-yard relay.

Miss Strong received a setback when C.A.S.A. official Dr. Paul P. Haugh of London, Ont., announced she could not compete in the 100-yard freestyle because of a groin injury suffered three weeks ago. The Vancouverite had already copped two records when told to quit.

Robinson New Leader In N.L. Batting Race

NEW YORK, June 28 (UP)—Jackie Robinson, of the Dodgers, believes Stan Musial is baseball's best hitter but that didn't stop him from taking the National League batting leadership from the Cardinal star this week.

Musial didn't slump. He boosted his average two points to .338 but Robinson picked up 12 points during the same period to move into first place with a .340 average.

In official averages which included performances up to Thursday's night games, Frank Baumholtz, of the Cubs, ranked third in the National League with a .321 mark. Catcher Toby Atwell, of the Cubs, was next with .319 and Whitey Lockman, with .317, completed the circuit's "big five."

Al Rosen, the Cleveland third baseman, replaced Don DiMaggio, of Boston, as the top batter in the American League. Rosen added seven points during the week to bring his average to .333. DiMaggio, who lost 16 points, slumped to fourth with .322.

George Kell, of the Red Sox, remained second with .328. Ferris Fain, of the A's, made the biggest advance, jumping from 12th to third as he boosted his average 27 points to .324.

Billy Goodman, of the Red Sox, was fifth with a .315 figure.

Hank Sauer, of the Cubs, continued to lead the majors in runs batted-in with 60 but Bobby Thomson, of the Giants, was close behind with 58. Rosen led the

Finals Sunday In B.C.E. Net Championships

Ken Hill moved into the finals of the men's single event in the B.C. Electric Tennis Club championships Friday night when he won in straight sets from Jack Fouracre, 6-4, 6-3.

He will meet the winner of the Keith Lamont-Bob Bayne match which was previously called on account of darkness. Lamont is defending champion.

All finals will be played Sunday afternoon.

O'Neill to Pilot Phils

PHILADELPHIA, June 28 (AP)—Philadelphia Philles, floundering in the National League's second division, changed managers in mid-season today with veteran Steve O'Neill replacing one-time college professor Eddie Sawyer.

Owner Bob Carpenter announced the shift Friday night at a press conference following the Philles' 6-0 win over the New York Giants.

O'Neill, former pilot of the Detroit Tigers, Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox, will be running the club when the Philles meet New York tonight.

Carpenter didn't say it in so many words, but it was apparent he was trying to put some whiz back in the "whiz kids"—The collection of youngsters who slid into the National League pennant on the final day of the 1950 season and had to be content to rest on these laurels ever since, despite some fretful goading by the usually quiet-spoken, easy-going Sawyer.

In replacing Sawyer with O'Neill, Carpenter was giving his

WATKINS WINS JUNIOR CROWN

VANCOUVER, June 28 (CP)—Steady Doug Watkins, 16-year-old Point Grey junior, plodded through the rain over his home course Friday to win the British Columbia junior golf championship.

Watkins fired rounds of 76 and 75 over the par-72 course to finish with a 72-hole total of 301, seven strokes better than Gord MacKenzie, of Quilchena. Kevin Riley, the favorite, wound up in third place with 309, one stroke back of MacKenzie.

TEE TOPICS

This week's lesson:
First, don't play golf with Colwood's professional Bill Court.
Second, don't play with Will Cotton, either.
For a guy who "doesn't play much," Bill's one-over par 71 last Thursday is hard to take.
As for Cotton... any time club captain George "Porky" Andrews is interested, it can be proved here that if Cotton is a 14-handicapper, then there's something wrong with our mathematical learnings.
He shot an 80, George, honest he did.
Yep! We got took, as Father Boyle... his friends call him "Bullet"... will testify.
Father Boyle is the Catholic priest at the hospital which once was the old Colwood clubhouse. Court gives him lessons on the side and Notre Dame alumnus reciprocates by acting as Bill's caddy.
Naturally, he's a football fan of the Irish... "saw Indiana play last year" and calls this year's Notre Dame 10-game test a "suicidal schedule".
It was a pleasure, Father. Actually the 71 made by Bill isn't so noteworthy, but the guy who made it is.
Only a few short years ago, Bill was a polo victim. He recovered, but not completely, and now his swing is restricted. "I'm all right for nine holes," he admits, "then it starts to tell." Just another example of what determination and heart can do for a guy.

Incidentally, Bill says the Stan Leonard and, probably Fred Wood, exhibition—at least it will be two Vancouver pros—is still on. "Whenever they set the date is okay with Leonard," says Bill.
Bill's wife, Nan, is his greatest booster in her quiet way, and according to secretary Derek Rhys Jones, "Bill's done a great job in the pro shop since he took over the position."

James "Jim" Dalziel is a new secretary at Uplands... A self-confessed world traveler, Jim assumed his duties this week.

"I came to Victoria in 1939, liked what I saw and decided to come back," says the explanation official from Sumatra.

Jim learned his golf in the fields of Scottish heather, took up residence here four years ago and joined Colwood.

"A popular appointment," says Rhys Jones, "we'll miss Jim." All of which makes pro-tem secretary Charlie Smith happy. "Now I'll be able to get out and play some golf," he intones. "Sure miss it."

Out at the Victoria Club, members are sporting engraved Zippo lighters, presented by the Seattle Golf Club last week on the occasion of the 50th anniversary match between the two clubs.

Harold Wilson says no one has yet contradicted the theory that this is the oldest international golf competition in North America.

Leo Derman is back in harness at Gorge Vale and enthused over the inter-club junior match Sunday between Uplands and the Gorge. "We're turning the course over to the kids," says Leo of the first junior match in recent history.

"It should do the game a lot of good and we hope is the forerunner of many future matches of this nature."

Meanwhile the Gorge Gold-Dust twins, Shirley Fry and Dot Herbertson, are hard at their game in preparation for the B.C. tourney at Colwood, July 7-11. Shirley had an 81 at Oak Bay this week.

Gorge juniors who took part in the B.C. junior at Vancouver were: Don Carlow, Bill Holland, Teddy Bradshaw, Mel Carlow and Art Bayliss.

Did you know that there are 2,000 public courses and over 3,000 private clubs in the United States... A couple of Tacoma visitors who have been having a golf holiday at Uplands are B.D. Harrington and George Norton.

Jim Robertson, with plenty of spare time on his hands is back in the groove... a 72 Thursday.

VANCOUVER BOPS INDIANS Thompson In Shamrock Net

Something has to be done to stop the Victoria Shamrocks from losing games on foreign floors and tonight's experiment finds Aln Thompson in goal for the Irish when they take on the last-place Nanaimo Native Sons at Nanaimo Civic Arena.

Thompson, currently leading Foul Bay of the Senior B League to an undefeated season, was rated as a pre-season favorite to replace the retired Bill Andrews as regular goalie.

However, Jim Hetherington came through in unexpected fashion and has been regarded as regular net custodian over the greater part of the season. This will be Thompson's opportunity to contest Hetherington's job.

DRUCE SIDELINED
Rover Tommy Druce will be out for the second straight game as a result of the charley horse he picked up against P.N.E. Indians last week. Harry Irwin and John Newton will again be up from senior B ranks.

Shamrocks' record against the Sons is two lopsided victories at home and an 18-16 loss in Nanaimo.

Once again first place in the league standings is a sawoff between three teams. Vancouver joined Victoria and New Westminster in top spot by snowing under P.N.E. Indians 20-8 on the mainland Friday night.

Vancouver held a slim 6-5 edge at the end of the third quarter, increased it to 9-6 at the half and outscored Indians 11-2 in the second half.

OGDEN, Utah, June 28 (AP)—Manager Marv Jensen said Friday agreement has been reached for a heavyweight bout between Rex Layne and Ezzard Charles in Ogden Aug. 8, but it remains to be determined whether it will be for 10 or 15 rounds.

HARRY JAMES REAL BASEBALL ADDICT

By DENNY BOYD
He blushed!

Harry James is recognized as being one of the top trumpet players of all times and is currently one of the top three band leaders, both in popularity and financial return. He owns a huge string of Palomino horses and to top it all, he's married to Betty Grable. Quite a list of accomplishments.

But the fact remains that when Harry was asked this week how his hand baseball team was doing, he looked sheepishly at his yellow suede loafers and blushed a deep crimson.

"Aaah," mumbled Harry the Horn. "I don't know what's wrong with our club; we dropped four in a row to Les Brown's crew and then I'm darned if Tommy Dorsey didn't beat us too."

When Harry isn't on the stand caressing high C's with his glistening horn, when he isn't grooming one of his string of classy horses or when he isn't just sitting at home ogling his missus, there isn't a greater baseball fan in the entertainment business. One

YANKS INCREASE LEAD
In the American League the Yankees increased their first-place lead to three and a half games, widest they have enjoyed this year, with a five-hit, 10-0 victory over the Athletics. Steady Eddie Lopat pitched his second shutout and fifth win.

The astonishing Senators took over third place by beating the second-place Red Sox 5-3, while the White Sox moved into a fourth-place tie with the Indians by topping them 5-3. The Browns edged the Tigers 2-1.

They were back there again today, once more punneling punching-bag opponents who are responsible for the four-game lead they enjoy over the runner-up Giants.

Friday night they topped the Braves 8-3 on the eight-inning two-hit relief pitching of Ralph Branca, and it gave them a total of 28 wins against just one defeat this year against their favorite opponents, the Braves, Pirates and Reds.

They are now 9-0 against Boston, 10-0 against Pittsburgh and 10-1 against Cincinnati.

That's pretty sensational except that against the rest of the league they are just an even-temper 500 with 16 wins and 16 losses, standing 25 with the Giants, 5-6 with the Cardinals, 6-3 with the Cubs and 3-2 with the Phils.

SIMMONS SIMMERS
The Phils, handing Eddie Sawyer a farewell victory, 6-0, on the three-hit pitching of Curt Simmons, snapped a six-game game winning streak. It was Simmons' third shutout and his sixth win. The Phils also beat their jinx pitcher, Larry Jansen, who had topped them eight straight times.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 28 (AP).—The eight men who were supposed to reach the quarter-finals of the men's singles in the all-England tennis championships finally made it Friday.

At least half of them had real fights in 90-degree weather before they got through.

While more than 100 persons fainted from the heat, top-seeded Frank Sedgman of Australia disposed of fellow countryman Don Candy without working up a good sweat, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

FIVE SET MATCH
Seventh-seeded Eric Sturgess of South Africa, who meets Sedgman in the next round, had to go five sets to defeat Grant Golden of the United States, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

The winners were the seeded players from one to eight—Sedgman; Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt; Vic Seixas of Philadelphia; Dick Savitt, defending champion from Orange, N.J.; Ken McGregor of Australia; Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif.; Sturgess and Mervyn Rose of Australia.

McGregor dropped the first set to his Brazilian opponent, Amanda Vieira, but went on to win, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

PATTY BEATEN
Drobny defeated Lew Hoad, 17-year-old Australian sensation, and Seixas overcame 12th seeded Budge Patty, 1950 Wimbledon champion from Los Angeles, in the best matches of the day.

Hoad served even more powerfully than the veteran Drobny, but experience paid as Drobny won, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Seixas showed his best form of the week in downing Patty, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Card shortstop Marty Marion—expressed the belief that Brooklyn has too much power for any club in the National League. In the American League he picks the Yankees and said that the Cleveland Indians are falling apart because of internal strife.

Another great friend of Harry's is Dick Adams, playing manager of the Wenatchee Chiefs. Harry claims Adams is a great trumpet player and an even better arranger.

He was glad to hear that Victoria was well in front of the rest of the league as he has been a Cec Garriett fan for some time.

"Cec played some great ball down on the coast with Los Angeles," James confided. "He was just like Enos Slaughter—always running and hustling. I bet he's a great manager."

James spoke of the Cardinals in glowing terms—he has a mitt presented to him by ex-

Spectators Accommodated For Race Meet

The one-mile course laid out by Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association for its race meet July 1 at Esquimalt Lagoon will be "in the spectators' laps," according to Bob Watson, commodore of the club and race chairman.

The course, with half-mile straightaways, will roughly parallel the spit, and will be about 100 feet off shore at the nearest point. Officials expect speeds exceeding 80 miles per hour on the straight stretches by the fastest of the eight classes of racing craft entered. There will be 16 races between 1 and 5 p.m. for the 43 boats to compete.

Walt Pocekay of Wenatchee and Mel Wasley of Spokane are still waging a private race for the Western International League batting championship.

For the third straight week, the pair occupy the top two positions but this week Pocekay has taken the lead with a .355 mark as Wasley has slipped down to .343, according to figures including games of Sunday, June 22.

Pocekay leads in hits with 89 and in total bases with 128. Leading W.I.L. averages to Savitt, defending champion from current Tye averages follow:

A Yorkshire Tennis Dish

You've heard of Yorkshire pudding? There's another Yorkshire "dish" you'll be hearing a lot about during this tennis season... and, we'd like to predict... for several seasons to come.

We're talking about Margaret Bonner, triple winner in the recent club tournament at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club, who came here from Hull, Yorkshire, just eight months ago. The fact that the tennis season was practically over on her arrival didn't stop her from trying out Canadian courts... with good result.

Playing tennis spasmodically throughout the winter was not enough to satisfy the energetic Marg, so she took up badminton and proved to be a strong player in that department, too.

SQUASH HER GAME

She'd like a chance to show what she can do at squash, which is really her game, but is disappointed to find there is no ladies' squash in Victoria.

She was chosen to represent

England at squash in the 1951-52 season matches but passed up the honor, having decided to come to Canada.

"Squash quickens your footwork and anticipation, and gives you ideas for tactics on the tennis courts," says Marg.

Although she has never had any professional coaching, her father (who, with her mother, is currently visiting in Victoria) began teaching her tennis when she was eight years old.

By the time she was 15, she was captain of the school tennis team. Later she won a number of Red Cross tournaments, but had to hang up her tennis shoes for three years during the war, when she was on secret work in the British Foreign Office.

It was in 1946 that Marg really started playing the game seriously. For five years she was co-holder of the ladies' and mixed doubles club championships. However, she was always runner-up in the ladies' singles, losing out to the same girl every year. Incidentally, her club, the Y.P.L., with 500 members and 50 courts, is the largest in Europe. Marg did not confine her activities to the home-town club, but played in the north of England and Yorkshire championships at Scarborough; played in the Yorkshire league, and in matches between Hull and Rotterdam in Holland.

As an employee of the Midland bank she was a member of its provincial tennis team, chosen from all the bank branches to play against the London team. Two years in a row Marg went to London with the twelve-girl team.

SEEKS B.C. TITLE

Now that she's in Victoria, she's content to stay put, tennis-wise, and is looking forward to having a "shot" at the B.C. championships. In the meantime, when not working in the Provincial Civil Defence office, she's practicing up for the city tournament which is just a week away. "Practice" consists of playing two or three evenings during the week, and twice at week-ends. If she had the time, she confesses, she'd like to play every day!

Keep your eye on this tanned, dark-haired, nimble girl who puts a lot of race on the ball and plays a powerful, steady, all-court game. A game which, according to fellow club members, compares favorably with that of some of the better male players.

Marg, on the other hand, claims that she is quite willing to let the men do all the work in mixed doubles, which she prefers, because "a girl can take a rest now and then!"

Though her favorite game is squash, Margaret Bonner looms as one of the brightest female tennis stars to grace the courts of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club in many a day. Margaret recently won the triple crown at Victoria Lawn, the ladies' singles, ladies' doubles and mixed doubles.

FIVE YEARS AWAY

Davis Cup Victory Possible Says Main

TORONTO, June 28 (BUP)—Canada will stand a chance of winning the series—not just a set—when she takes on the United States or the Australian Davis Cup teams in 1957, Lorne Main, one of the nation's leading tennis stars, says.

"Our players have improved tremendously in the last few seasons, and I'll be most surprised if we don't really come into our own in the Davis Cup within the next five years."

The Vancouver-born star will be one of the men to do so. Currently he is warming up for the Davis Cup tilt with Mexico in the Ontario championships here. Main and Brendan Macken, of Montreal, are the two sure bets for team places.

"I wouldn't say how we'll do this year," Main said. "I'll be close against Mexico. Naturally I think we can beat them, but it won't be easy and you can't count them out."

"But four or five years from now, it will be a different story."

Main, now 22, looms as Canada's surest hope for the future. Most experts agree that tennis stars reach their peak at the age of 26, which means Main still has his best years ahead of him. Main, however, points to Macken, for whom he has a warm personal and professional regard, as a logical paradox. He hopes they will be a two-man team for the Davis Cup, playing doubles as well as singles.

"Macken is 29 now," Main said, "not old by any stretch of the imagination, and I think he's better than ever. I think it's very likely he'll have his best season this year."

OLYMPIC POSSIBILITIES

Russia Won't Come Close

By JOHN McCALLUM
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—Seventy-one nations will move to the post for the 15th edition of the Olympic Games in Helsinki, July 19 to Aug. 3.

American athletes would like to beat them all, but most important is Russia. Red propagandists have been yelling for us to put up or shut up for some time. The United States would like to shut 'em up.

There is, however, a sizeable camp, always present and articulate in any sport, who think the Kremlin crew will flop down in front. Others deem it a singularly nauseous notion to bracket the rustic Russky with our precision-tooled combatants.

Statistics, pure and simple, uphold the latter. The race shouldn't even be close. The best the U.S.S.R. can hope for is rain.

Joe Fruhling, member of an international body called Associated Track and Field Statisticians, furnishes us with fuel for thought. He feels Stalin's stooges are vastly over-rated.

"They are frightfully far off the pace," Fruhling asserts. "For a country of 200,000,000 people, it is astounding they have no more depth."

To illustrate his point, Fruhling, who has all American and European records dating back to 1855, compares the brighter prospects.

STANFIELD AND WHITFIELD

100 meters: Northwestern's Jim Golliday has toured the distance in 10.2 N. Suharov's 10.3 tops the Soviets. Suharov runs as if he had buggy springs in his knees, is a stocky, powerful dashman and not too consistent.

200 meters: Andy Stanfield's 20.6 is our answer to the Reds here. The best the raw Russians can muster is Suharov's 21.4.

400 meters: Mal Whitfield's 46.7 stands out real big. J. Lituev, a reformed hurdler, punched the stopwatch at 48.3, is Russia's steadiest at this distance.

1500 meters: While U.S. Olympic brass can't decide what to do with Don Gehrmann, the Bouncing Badger has sprinted this one in 3:50.6, good enough to run away and hide from Alex Pougachevsky. The middle-sized, stylish Russian's best time is 3:52.4. 5,000 and 10,000 meters: The Communist ballyhoo machine has a patent on these properties. Propaganda-wise, look who leads the Russians, Nick Popov—pronounced pop-off. He's a slender, unpredictable operative, as erratic as a Communist peace rally.

But there's nothing erratic about his 14:20.6 in the 5,000, 30:05.6 in the 10,000. This compared to American Fred Wilt's 14:26.2 and Curt Stone's 30:38.4.

PERHAPS HERE

3,000-meter steeplechase: They've got the lease on this event. Watch V. Kazanchev, 24, slender, relaxed and durable, best of the world's steeplechasers. He's gone under 9 minutes on five occasions, a record. Horace Ashenfelter and Curt Stone are 9:15 men.

400-meter hurdles: Lituev's 51.7 was best in Europe last year, but Charley Moore's 50.9 the other day was only three-tenths off the world record.

Field events: With the exception of the hammer, the Soviets are still living in the Rock Ages compared to American performers. A 23-foot broad jump, for example, is a remarkable leap in Russia, whereas a 25-foot jump hardly qualifies in this country.

The Russians have accomplished some wondrous things, but they have yet to devise a means of fooling a stopwatch or measuring tape.

Provincial Golf Meet At Colwood July 7-11

Colwood Golf Club will be the scene of the annual B.C. women's gold tournament, July 7-11, and a record field of top-flight provincial divoters is expected.

Defending champion of the title is Babs Davies of Vancouver Marine Drive, while Victoria city champion Margaret Todd was runner-up last year. Both are expected to enter.

Qualifying round July 7 will be 18 holes medal play, with the 18 low qualifiers beginning match play July 8. The 36-hole final will be played July 11.

Preceding the tournament will be the inter-city team match for the Hunting Cup July 6.

Cleveland to Know N.H.L. Fate Tuesday

MONTREAL, June 28 (BUP)—A decision on Cleveland Baron's application for admission to the National Hockey League will be made at a meeting of league owners in Toronto next Tuesday.

The date for the meeting was announced at Montreal by league publicist Ken McKenzie who said, "there will be a definite decision one way or the other."

Baron, who has all American and European records dating back to 1855, compares the brighter prospects.

AUSTRALIA'S OLYMPIC THREAT

Fastest Girl in World

SYDNEY, Australia, June 28 (Reuters).—"The fastest girl in the world." 20-year-old Marjorie Jackson, is one of the best bets to win a gold medal for Australia at the summer Olympics in Helsinki, Finland, next month.

Experts here believe that Marjorie, who is a typist when not on the cinders, is almost certain to win the 100-metre event and has excellent prospects in the 200 metres.

Marjorie became the fastest woman sprinter in March when she ran 100 yards in 10.4 seconds, to better her own previous world record by three-tenths of a second.

It was the fourth time this year she broke her previous record, but because of wind assistance her earlier performances were not recognized.

A shy, modest girl, Marjorie became known to the world when she beat 1948 Olympic champion Fanny Blankers-Koen in Australia in 1950. She won the 1950 Empire Games sprint in New Zealand when she equalled the then world record of 10.8 seconds.

Later, in Australia she further reduced the record by .1 second and this record stood until her spectacular run in March.

Marjorie, who lives in the mining and industrial town of Lithgow, about 80 miles from Sydney, follows a secret training program laid down by her coach, Jim Monaghan.

Monaghan, who has carefully studied Marjorie's performances, muscular control, variations and long striding, worked out a new training theory last year and now is putting it in practice.

He trains her each evening at Lithgow sports ground and at a considerable distance from spectators.

"If the system becomes general knowledge," he said, "any coach could copy it—and that goes for possible games rivals."

Monaghan says, however, his general training plan is to keep her at her peak then taper off training slowly for a few weeks before bringing her back into training three weeks before leaving for Helsinki.

Marjorie keeps her weight at 114 pounds.

FARM and RANCH

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Following months of organization and some setbacks, the Vancouver Island Association of Nurserymen and Allied Trades, has been launched and appears to be here to stay.

The new organization will do much to gear the nursery industry on the island to higher production. In Europe, similar organizations have proved highly successful and have done much for the expansion and development of the industry.

The association is headed by S. Edwards, Craigflower, K. E. Christensen and E. Lohbrunner did much of the organizing.

Cherry Crop Not Shaping Up

The cherry crop is not expected to be as large this summer as last year's, reports from both the Canada Experimental Farm, Saanich, and the provincial horticultural department indicate.

The reduced crop is largely the result of poor pollination caused by adverse weather conditions in the spring. Cherries chiefly affected are Bing and Lamberts, which are self-sterile.

Small Holders Try Walnuts

Why not grow one or two walnut trees?

This suggestion comes from the Saanichton Experimental Farm and is primarily for small holders.

It's a good idea. Everything should be done to make full use of all the land available. Fruit and nut trees are good investments for anyone striving to become self-sufficient.

On other farm fronts, some interesting experiments have been carried out on pastures for poultry by the Canada Experimental Farm. This should be of interest to anyone interested in reducing feed costs.

Research work revealed that good pasture may save up to 20 per cent of feed for growing birds, but careful selection of

This fall a drive will be launched for members. The organization is open to all horticulturists and people indirectly connected with the nursery industry, as well as nurserymen. Federal and provincial horticulturists are pleased that an organization of this type has been formed on this island.

Anyone planting these varieties should also plant a good pollinator alongside—about one to every 10 trees. This will ensure good pollination.

A good pollinator is the "Van." This variety is highly recommended by horticulturists. It also produces an excellent cherry, equal to the Lambert. The variety is also self-fertile and is ideal for the home gardener who has room only for one tree.

suitable forage species is necessary. One of the main considerations is palatability. To make the maximum use of pasture the birds must consume the largest amount of forage.

To evaluate some of Canada's common perennial grasses, and legumes, research was carried out on four grasses, brome, timothy, orchard-grass, creeping red fescue; and four legumes, alfalfa, ladino, white dutch clover and broadleaf trefoil.

Reports showed that orchard grass appeared to be somewhat more palatable than brome or timothy, and all three were much more palatable than creeping red fescue. Orchard grass and some brome sods stood up to heavy grazing equally well and were much better than timothy in this respect.

Of the four legumes tested, Ladino appeared to be the best.

Fast Growing Plants Need for Fall Harvest

When sowing in midsummer vegetables for fall and winter harvest—the best of the year—it is important to select varieties which will mature in time to escape being frozen.

Quickest maturing vegetable is the early radish which matures in 20 days; and slowest are winter onions which require 115 days.

Between these extremes are varieties which may take 40, 60 or 80 days to reach the size and quality which best fits them for table use.

Seed catalogues usually give the maturity date for each variety listed. From your local weather bureau you can ascertain the average date of the first killing frost in your vicinity. Compare these two, and you can easily avoid crops which have no chance to develop fully before winter.

There are two salad crops which are at their best in the fall—endive and Chinese cabbage. Chinese cabbage which matures in 90 days is difficult to grow in the summer, because it runs to seed, but in the short days of autumn, it makes beautiful, elongated heads of crisp leaves having a suggestion of cabbage flavor which are delicious cooked or raw.

Vegetable crops which should not be sown in June include peas, early radishes, lettuce and spinach. All these require cool weather, and you may sow very early kinds in August, so they will mature in the autumn.

Quick maturing crops include snap beans, beets, carrots, endive, lettuce, kohlrabi, turnips, spinach, peas and radishes. The later you sow, the "earlier" should be the variety you sow.

Several vegetables can be left in the garden late into the winter, or all winter long, and harvested as needed, to be thawed out and served.

Kale will provide the table with greens all winter long. Brussels sprouts stands freezing and thawing in the early winter, and frequently remains in good condition until Christmas. Parsnips which freezing makes sweeter, and salsify, the vegetable oyster, can be dug up all winter, or dug in the fall, placed in paper bags, one serving to the bag, and stored in a box outdoors where they will freeze. A bag can be taken to the kitchen and thawed out when wanted.

Slow growing vegetables, which need only to be sown once in order to give an all season harvest, enjoy the cool days and more plentiful rainfall of autumn as much as the early types.

Swiss chard should be kept young by cutting off all leaves more than 10 inches long, and encouraging new growth, which will be more tender. New Zealand spinach can be harvested until freezing weather. Peppers and egg plant produce abundantly in the fall, and the late maturing tomatoes and sweet corn combine top quality with the heaviest yield of the season.

Truly, the autumn harvest is the finest of the year!

The Canadian National Railways operated 24,176 miles of railroad in 1951, compared with 17,009 for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

St. Laurent's Senate Reform Lost in Shuffle

Pension Plan Will Not Apply

By BRIAN O'LEARY

Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, June 28 — Does Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent still hope to reform the Senate before he finally retires from active political life?

When the prime minister first told the Commons that the government intended to pass legislation giving M.P.'s pensions, he side-stepped the Senate reform issue.

At that time an opposition member asked Mr. St. Laurent if the new pension fund would apply to the Senate as well as the House of Commons.

The prime minister could have said "yes" or he "hoped so." Either answer would have implied that he has some Senate reform plan in mind, at least in the form of retirement at a specific age.

Or the prime minister could have said "no" to the opposition question, which would have implied that he had no plans in the near future for Senate reform.

NO COMMENT

But Mr. St. Laurent said neither. He smoothly avoided a direct reply—declining to show his hand on the question—by saying simply:

"The government is not recommending any specific plan; it is referring the matter to the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons."

He said no more. Nor did he mention the Senators in his opening remarks on the government's intentions regarding a pension plan for M.P.'s.

And the banking and commerce committee of the Commons? It simply recommended pensions for members of the House of Commons, but not for the Senate.

OPEN SECRET

It was an open secret in Ottawa after Mr. St. Laurent's 1949, that he hoped to put through several major reforms. One was the Senate.

A few years ago Senator Wishart, Robertson, government leader in the Senate and a member of the St. Laurent cabinet without portfolio, suggested that Senators should be retired at the age of 75.

This didn't get very far, and nothing more was heard of the plan. Whether Mr. St. Laurent approved of his colleague's plan or not was never disclosed.

But what Mr. St. Laurent has in mind for possible Senate reform, or even if he intends to carry some reform through, is anybody's guess. Only the prime minister knows, and he hasn't shown his hand as yet.

Blooms End But Gardening Care Goes On for Wide Plant Range

By JACK BEASTALL

Why waste water on plants which have finished flowering for this season?

The veteran gardener may consider such a question somewhat absurd, but it is surprising the number of novitiates who ask it each season.

Until we have learned how plants produce flowers and the work they do for possibly six or nine months in order to bloom for a few weeks, it may seem quite logical to assume the end of flowering as the end of their need for care and attention.

The daffodil is an excellent example of why plants need care after flowering. When a daffodil bulb is cut in half at the time of fall planting, a complete flower in miniature is at its centre. This is next year's bloom which was formed between the time this year's flower faded and the time at which the foliage ripened. Thus it is the care given the bulbs after flowering which determines the quality of the next season's bloom, not, as so often presumed, the application of fertilizer in the spring.

The same applies to peonies. The early varieties have finished flowering, but the plants are now manufacturing food to be stored in the underground tubers for feeding the new growths which which start early next spring. For good blossoms next year water is essential until mid-August, then, after a month of ripening, watering must be continued until fall rains are adequate in order to set strong, plump growth buds.

Many of our flowering shrubs set their buds for next year's flowers after this year's flowers are finished. These few examples show why plants should be given regular soakings even though their job of beautifying the garden is finished for this season.

While on the subject of after-flowering care we should mention one herbaceous perennial which requires special attention now. It is the Pyrethrum or Painted Daisy. Because of its early flowering habit, spring division means the loss of flowers for the season, and when divided in the fall, rotting of the crowns during winter is the usual result.

The best and proper time to move or divide Pyrethrums is immediately after flowering, and the plants will make fresh growths at once if provided with plenty of moisture.

Seed Yield Green Onion Crop

To maintain a continuous supply of green onions through the summer and fall, seed must be sown. It is rarely possible to obtain onion sets to plant for a late crop. Seed of a bunching variety, such as white Lisbon, should be sown in drills 2 inches deep, taking the precautions usual for summer sowing in order to assist germination.

Sow the seed thinly and begin to pull onions for use as soon as they are large enough. If soil is hilled around them as they grow the length of the white stalk will be increased. There is no reason why the green portion of a stalk should not be eaten, however.

If sets were sown to produce large onions, when the tops grow limp and topple over it is time to harvest the bulbs. They need not be dug right away, but before they have time to resume growth they should be taken up and dried in the sun for several days before they are stored in a dry, well ventilated place.

Onion plants that develop a seed stalk, with a ball-shaped seed pod at the top, will not make satisfactory bulbs, but should be pulled up as soon as noticed, and used for green onions. It is the larger onion sets that bear seeds, and the smaller ones which develop into mature onions.

These early onions will keep well during the summer and fall; and their mild flavor will be welcome in salads, in the period when green onions are not so plentiful. Some gardeners follow the ancient practice of tying their tops together and hanging strings of onions in the basement.

or dropping them from garage rafters.

The onion is not one of the vitamin-rich vegetables, but its flavor makes it indispensable. Such vitamin content as it has is in the green stalk and leaves, which can be cut up and mixed with a tossed salad to impart the appetizing flavor.

A rich soil is required to grow onions from seed. A balanced plant food should be applied at the rate of a pint to 25 feet of row, before sowing.

Canadians bought 22 pounds of butter and seven pounds of margarine per capita in 1951.

Death of Navy Officer Raises Pension Query

Question of a pension for the widow of Lt.-Cmdr. E. L. Borradaile, killed June 11 while rendering aid to a Japanese mine near Prince Rupert, rests with the Canadian Pension Commission.

Doubts have been raised by friends of the family whether or not Mrs. Borradaile will receive a pension, as her husband held a "short service appointment," and was not a member of the permanent force.

Examination of the Pension Act, which applies to all armed forces, indicates that the widow of the veteran demolition expert is eligible for a pension of $1,008 a year, free of income tax.

There are two pension acts applying to the armed forces—the Pension Act, and the Defence Services Pension Act. Lt.-Cmdr.

JEWELER WHO DEFIED WOUNDS TO TAKE REST

First World War
Veteran Retiring

Loss of a leg and a mangled hand in First World War didn't deter William Henry Whittingham, 2575 Estevan, from following a life-long ambition to become a jeweler.

Mr. Whittingham went into retirement this week after 33 years as a precision jeweler at the local firm of Little & Taylor and he told his story today.

"I'm 63 and going to have as much fun as I can for the remaining years I've got on this earth," he promised.

Strange as it may seem, a piece of jewelry saved Mr. Whittingham's life in the First World War.

A watch in his pocket while in the front line with Victoria's 67th Western Scots Battalion, stopped a piece of shrapnel.

That "friendly act" on the part of the watch "cinched" his ambition to become a jeweler.

Mr. Whittingham is an ardent fly fisherman and his hobby is "making little things" out of wood.

"Last year I nearly lost my only good hand in a power saw," he said with a chuckle.

Gardiner Hoping To Better Census

OTTAWA, June 28 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons Friday he is not satisfied the way the census was carried out in 1951 and hopes that when the next comes around—in 1956—things will be different.

Reason for his complaint? The census-taker had changed the definition of a farmer so that it appeared in 1951 that farm population had dropped to about 2,900,000 from 3,100,000 in 1941.

Actually, said Mr. Gardiner, the number of people associated with farming in Canada was in the neighborhood of 6,000,000, or almost one-half of the entire Canadian population of 14,000,000.

CITY UNEMPLOYED FIGURE AT NEW HIGH FOR JUNE

A new high in the number of people out of work in Victoria for any June of the past six years has been established, C. A. Mudge, manager of the National Employment Office here, reported today.

Mr. Mudge said unemployment is soaring due to labor disputes, coupled with student registrations for jobs and an increasing number of housewives seeking work.

Despite increased unemployment, Mr. Mudge said there were still jobs available for people with specific qualifications.

Playgrounds' Program Of Educational Value

In addition to the usual playground activities, supervisors will arrange beach parties, visits to public and private institutions, hikes, bicycle rides, wiener roasts, inter-park games and picnics.

"Parents can be sure that their child is not only learning something of value but also getting wholesome recreation during the school holidays," W. J. Pynn, director of the city's supervised playgrounds, said today.

He added that an outstanding staff of supervisors has been engaged to carry out the program.

"Supervisors have been taking a course of instruction in paper weaving, clay modeling, shellcraft, carpentry, finger painting, water color painting and woodcraft pictures."

Mrs. Lois Stuart, who has been carrying out this type of work in Toronto for the last four years, gave the course.

General activities will include softball, volleyball, football, tetherball and basketball... ping pong, horseshoe pitching and deck quoits.

The basis of an investment plan in most cases should be life insurance. The magician drops an egg into a clear glass pitcher filled with water. The audience sees the egg sink half way to the bottom and remain there, suspended in some mysterious manner.

This effect is secured by filling the pitcher half full with heavily salted water. Then it is filled full with fresh water, which is carefully poured down the sides of the pitcher so as not to disturb the salt water. Thus the egg sinks until it reaches the salt water, which causes it to float half way down.

Tyees on Buses With 'Square Wheels'

Life on Road With Professional Ball Club Certainly Isn't All It's Cracked Up To Be

Recently I had the pleasure of accompanying the Tyees on a road trip which saw them play in Vancouver, Spokane and Salem within one week.

We traveled close to 1,000 miles by plane and 80 by boat. Those 1,000 miles will be forever engraved in my mind and on the more tender part of my anatomy.

It was on Monday afternoon that we left Athletic Park by bus, our destination, Patricia Bay airport.

Here we flouted a pet superstition of ball players by flying to Vancouver. Some of the players were not ver-too happy about the plane, but the fact that flying gave them an extra day "at home" made up for their mental discomfort.

THE FIRST BUS
From Vancouver's airport it was a short bus ride to Capilano Stadium where the Tyees whaled the tar out of the home team Capilanos.

With that bravo start in for a week of catching up with lost sleep and attending ball games. What folly! The inquisition started immediately after the Vancouver game when we boarded our bus, had a steak in the city and set sail for Spokane. We hit the U.S. border shortly after midnight and, after trainer Jack Boag had taken care of immigration clearances, settled down for what was to be one of the most uncomfortable evenings I have ever spent.

Unfortunately our first driver suffered from weak ankles and we crept along at 35 miles an hour. We changed buses in Bellingham and were re-routed through Snoqualmie Pass, which added nearly 100 miles to our journey.

Not long after leaving Bellingham, the smallest talk about the Vancouver game ceased and players started to snore. I was usually seeking more comfortable positions.

Shoes came off, spare jackets were bundled up for pillows and, overcoats were used as blankets. Third baseman John Teece and I had chosen a front seat to escape the back seat bumps, but unfortunately the front door was loose and a cold breeze whistled in all night. Going over the Snoqualmie Pass we wrapped our feet in newspapers to escape the frostbite which we were certain was imminent.

A SLEEPLESS NIGHT
Eleven hours and dozens of cigarettes after leaving Vancouver we pulled into Spokane, bleary-eyed and ready to sleep for a week.

The night had been spent counting passing freight trucks and noting the various positions that some of the players assumed during the illusive 40 winks. Sleep, for one who was not used to road trips, was out of the question.

Once in the hotel, it took less than 10 minutes to crawl between the cool sheets for five hours of peaceful slumber.

Three games in Spokane produced three victories for the Tyees and they were a happy crew when Spokane was left in the exhaust of still another bus—at midnight, of course. On this bus my reporter shared a back seat with 10 kit bags and an emergency light that stubbornly stayed on but blinked annoyingly every time one's head started to nod.

Boag, outfielder, Granny Gladstone, Teece and pitcher Bill Wisneski escaped some of the cramping of the seats by climbing up on the baggage racks near the ceiling of the bus. There at least they could stretch out although their dangling arms and legs caused acid comments from the less fortunate.

PLAYERS SPEAK PIECE
Salem was reached with all concerned being in the same shape as they were on arrival at Spokane—dead beat and with a double-header scheduled that night. Infielder Don Fries reiterated the vow he makes every hour on the hour while riding buses: "I'm gonna quit this game and go back to the lunch bucket."

Second baseman Lu Brannaman confided that pitcher Moose Hardwood had it all off in busing, but "he used to be a real fellow" but "he quit after a couple of games." The morning after arriving in Salem, Eric Gard by a convulsing room-tempt, his mouth was watering for a long time with his head down. At 7 in the morning it was easy to pick up the wrong tube. Confidentially, the hair cream tastes terrible and will not last over a darn.

Losing three games out of four in Salem, the team drove all night Sunday and arrived in Seattle early Monday morning to board the boat back to Victoria.

But even the most tired player brightened when the Baseball Booster Club was on hand at dock-side with a warm welcome.

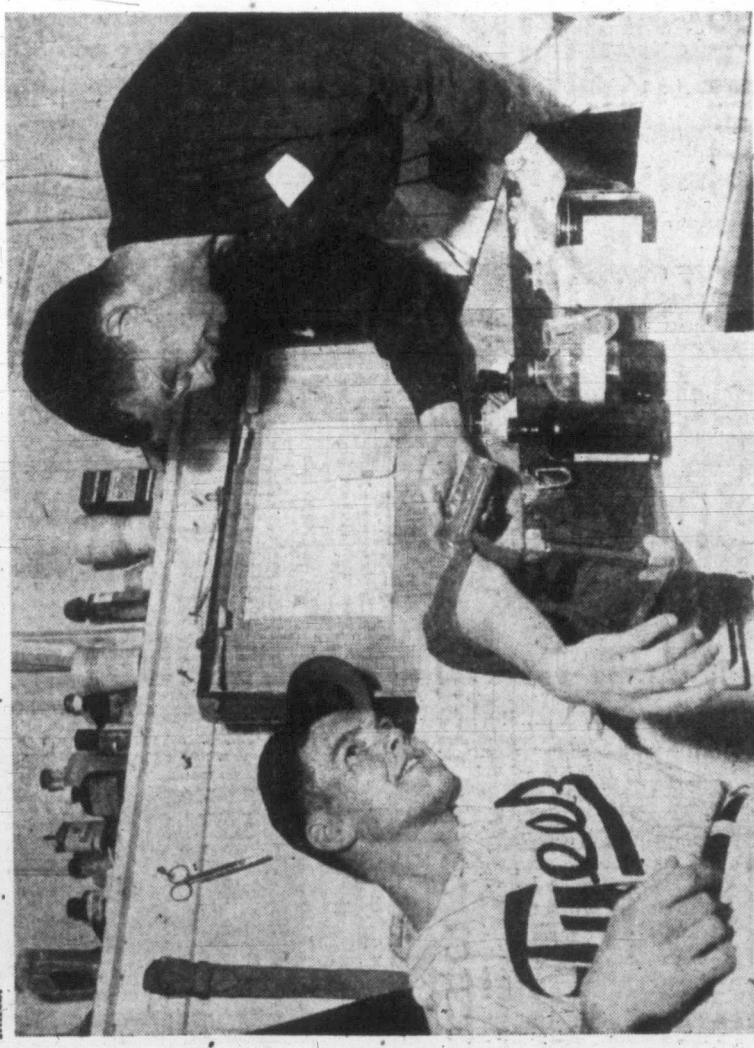

So remember that if the Tyees seem a step slower after the first night back from a road trip, they have a right to be weary.

Those square wheels kill you.

No matter what one's occupation is, it's a natural instinct to want to get to the top. Financial gain, prestige and the feeling of accomplishment are the main driving factors that supply the impetus in reaching this pinnacle.

When one is a minor league baseball player, as are the members of the Victoria Tyees, the incentive is prod towards major league standing. Unlike the more financially stable teams of the National and American Leagues, clubs in the minor league by buses. And any minor league player will agree the bus has not been built that does not develop square wheels after the first 150 miles.

The end of a long and arduous road trip has finally come as the Victoria Tyees prepare to board a chartered bus from Salem to Victoria via Seattle. Trainer Jack Boag (right), packs his trunk of medicines and liniments while pitcher Eric Gard wistfully thinks about Victoria, regular hours and sleeping in a bed rather than the back seat of an uncomfortable bus.

U.S. College High Jumper Sets Sights On New World Record of Seven Feet

By GEORGE WRIGHT

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (NEA)—Any time he enters a meet now, the whole world will be waiting to see if the Texas Aggies' six-foot-eight-inch high jumper, Walt (Buddy) Davis, breaks the world record of six-foot-11.

And those of us who watched him set a new Southwest Conference record of six-foot-10½ in Dallas are confident we were watching the world's seven-foot high jumper.

What's more, Buddy Davis is confident he can do it. "Making that jump at Dallas gave me lots of confidence that I think will help me get over at seven feet next time I work up that high," he said.

"You know all high jumpers have one fault in common—and that's when one reaches a height he has never done before, or one that means a record of some kind, he tends to tighten up, lose confidence. His best jumping form tends to change.

"I don't believe I'll tighten up nearly so much when I try seven feet from now on because I feel I can make it after jumping what I thought was over seven feet in Dallas.

WAS COOLED OFF
"That's what they said it was before I tried the jump. I got over it, didn't hit the bar, and I'm assured."

seven-foot jump as much now. Being a dignified person, but a meek one, he said, "I thought I was jumping and thinking that made it. Where a world record is involved you have to be careful in measuring to make sure as the officials were at Dallas.

"I just wish we'd known sooner than we did that it wasn't a world record, because if I'd had any idea it wasn't higher than the record I'd have tried to go higher.

"I was cooled off by the time we learned it wasn't a new mark, too late to try higher. If the long Aggie sets a new world mark you can put it down."

He was the first to predict it. I thought it was over seven feet in Dallas.

Gruber Conducts Scores 'Petty Dictators' Barring Musicians From Travel Between Countries

Two events occurred in recent days, neither one of which can be dismissed or passed over lightly.

One of them was the firing of six orchestras from the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, for alleged political unreliability on the say-so of a U.S. customs official. The other was a public request by the leading Toronto Rabbi, Abraham Feinberg, that the forthcoming recital by the German pianist, Walter Gieseking, be boycotted, at least by members of his congregation.

"I am not quite sure that I can or even want to take sides on this latter issue," said Rabbi Feinberg, "but the two events, I am taking a terrible risk in even bringing it up over my own signature."

Last winter, the Toronto Symphony Orchestra played, for the first time, in the United States, namely Detroit, Michigan.

The U.S. authorities refused to issue a blanket permit for the orchestra as a body to enter the U.S. for the purpose of filling this engagement, but they insisted, as is their absolute right, to screen each member of the orchestra individually.

Under this system, all but six were admitted.

The conductor was forced into the admittedly very awkward and difficult task of finding six individual substitutes for the American concert.

Six strange players, no matter how fine, are more than enough to destroy the oneness of the instrument which a symphony orchestra, even though composed of 100 or so individuals, unites.

Now the Toronto Symphony Orchestra has received renewed invitations to play again in Detroit, and indeed elsewhere in the U.S., and I am sure we are all happy over this deserved gesture of recognition. But because of that, the six players in question have been asked to resign, and, in the scheme of things, that was not only the loss of the orchestra job, but automatically the loss of virtually every other professional engagement.

The Toronto Local of the American Federation of Musicians, which, incidentally, calls itself the Toronto Musicians' Protective Association, appears to have supported the dismissal without question. I do not wish to be misunderstood. It does not occur to me to sit in judgment on the morality of the issues involved, from either side. But we do live in one of the few remaining countries in the world the basic law of which is equality before the law for everybody.

In not one single instance has there been any mention of any documented or other concrete proof of the guilt of these musicians.

The law of equality before the law has been best summed up in the statement that one is innocent until proved guilty by due process of law. It appears that these musicians were simply pronounced guilty, and not even given a legal chance to prove otherwise, if indeed they can. But surely they must be given the chance before the stigma of political unreliability is attached to them which threatens to bar them for life from further exercising of their professions for their very livelihood.

The musicians involved claim that they are innocent of the charges leveled against them. They deny having any actual or spiritual affiliation with illegal or subversive political parties. In the absence of any documented proof to the contrary, it would appear that these people ought to be in a more advantageous position to know what goes on inside their heads than any customs official not even personally acquainted with them and living some distance away.

I should have thought this the very last country in all the world where such high-handedness can be gotten away with. And it looks as if I am right. There was here enough public reaction, in the form of letters to the editor, etc., to make the position of the would-be law-givers and self-appointed law-enforcers untenable.

There was some mention now that some of the dismissed musicians may be reinstated, and the case of the others is also being reconsidered. Let them be tried, by all means, if indeed any basis for trial even exists. If they are found guilty, the law will deal with them adequately. I am sure. But if not, then let the musicians accused artists bring libel suits against some of the petty private detectives and distasteful in order that they may think twice next time before they are seized once more by a misdirected urge to do unto others as they would have done unto them.

The "affaire" Feinberg vs. Gieseking will now have to wait until next week.

Visit of Great Contralto Highlight of Season

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Well, the finals of the music-drama season—the annual meetings—have been played out to a more or less general satisfaction. Which means that I can step down from the cheering rostrum or idly rousing second for a respite and a spell of gardening, house cleaning—and writing!

It is pleasant to look back over a season, which, while it contained doubtless the average number of odds and disappointments, I feel had a most heartening share of living moments.

Anyone who heard them will agree, I think, that the instrumental ensemble of the Paganini Quartet and the vocal ensemble of the de Paor Chorus were the most intense and satisfying experiences of the entire concert round last winter.

I would elect Solomon and Isaac Stern top soloists, but I would like to reserve a special niche for our own lovely Canadian songstress, Lois Marshall, whose appearance with the Victoria Symphony marked a four-star occasion for the Symphony Society's successful eleventh season.

FULL OF PROMISE
It is pleasant, too, to be aware that an even more keenly interesting season looms beyond the summer intermission. A new repertoire and new guest artists for the symphony; the return of the Paganini; a proposed new series of concerts arranged by Victoria College; fresh adventures of the Arts Centre and some especially distinguished visitors under the banner of Famous Artists.

I am more glad than I can say that Famous Artists are bringing Marian Anderson to the city in the new series. And, incidentally, the great contralto is not appearing in Vancouver or Seattle on this occasion. Which fact should satisfy the many Victorians who felt resentful that she appeared in Vancouver and not Victoria last winter.

Her concert in Vancouver coincided with the death of King George VI and in tribute to the Monarch, Anderson sang Schubert's "Ave Maria." The audience stood with bowed heads and there were not many dry eyes in the house.

ONE OF WORLD'S 'GREATS'
I am glad that she is to sing in Victoria because she is not only one of the few great contraltos of our age, but she is also, without doubt, one of the world's truly great artists, with a superb mind and spirit.

She has shown the greatness of her character in the quiet dignity with which she has faced the color prejudice which has been invoked against her frequently.

There was the famous incident of her being debarred from appearing in the Lincoln Hall in Washington, D.C. When, in protest, Harold L. Tuckman invited her to sing at the Lincoln Memorial, she accepted but refused a fee, saying she would sing for all who cared to come and listen. Her audience on that occasion numbered 75,000.

Much of the money she makes goes to charities, particularly those that benefit her own people. Anderson never, in any way, cheapened her art by using it for propaganda or coloring it with resentment and bitterness.

She was born in South Philadelphia into a poor, music-loving family. She sang in a junior church choir when she was six years old and during the next few years was often a soloist, sometimes earning small fees which were greatly needed, especially as her father died when Marian was 12 years old.

Singing teachers were found for her during her high school years, through the interest of friends and the Philadelphia Choral Society. When she was 17, the principal of the high school, convinced of her great talent, persuaded one of the leading teachers in Philadelphia to accept her as a pupil. Members of her church helped finance her lessons.

Boghetti, the teacher, has never forgotten the occasion when she first sang for him. Weary after long hours of teaching, he wanted nothing more than to relax and though it was growing dark, he did not even switch on the lights in his studio. The man was bored, the tall dusky high school girl was ill at ease and shy.

WILL MAKE HISTORY
Until she began to sing "Deep River." The magnificent throat vibrated, the deep, rich notes flowed forth and "it was as if the sun had suddenly flooded the room."

Ten years later, Marian Anderson she would ever be called upon to thrill the most critical audience in the world.

In 1935, she sang at the Mozarteum in Salzburg. Toscanini was present. So were Lotte Lehmann, Bruno Walter, Vincent Sheean and many others of like distinction. All agreed that a new heroic artist had arisen in the world of vocal music; one who would make history.

"I voice like yours," Toscanini told her, "comes but once in a century."

And it is because she is a great person who has endowed her gift of song with the beauty and breadth of her character and her mind, that I am glad of another chance of acclaiming Marian Anderson.

Family Works Better Than Hired Hands

Quists of Westholme Farm Company to Run Profitable Concern Along Cowichan River

By C. V. FAULKNER

On the moist bottom land bordering the Chemainus River at Westholme, Carl and Mary Quist have speckled their 18-year-old property with a family of sheep and cattle. They have turned the farm into a limited company with themselves, their sons, Byrd and Norman, and their daughter, Mary, as sole shareholders.

"We're a family company," Mrs. Quist said proudly, "the young people take more interest in the farm that way."

The Quists have applied the old "incentive" formula of free enterprise to the growing problem of keeping the younger generation on the land, and with marked success. Sharing the profits as well as the work, the Quist youngsters are actually working for themselves. Carl Quist, a man of many talents, is the head of the family. He would take his hands off the reins if he could, but he knows that his boys will do a job that would take hired hands all day. Carl came to the Island from Denmark in 1923. He met his wife here and settled down on a farm near Duncan. During the depression the Quists pulled up stakes and went to Denman with the idea of reclaiming them. But a short stay convinced them that British Columbia was the place to live so they headed back and bought the 160-acre farm that has been their home ever since.

This year the Quists will switch from their sheep production for several years and concentrate on raising Holstein cattle. Although they've carried both grade and purebred doesn't seem to agree with the sheep, I was told. Moreover, the moisture gives them foot rot and encourages intestinal parasites such as tape worms and liver flukes.

As Mrs. Quist puts it: "Sheep are meant for the mountains." "There's good profit in sheep, though," Carl added regretfully, "you get your money out of them."

Thirsty Chrysanthemums Often Get Half Water Needed

Usually one has to add commercial fertilizer to them before they are of much use.

Warm water, if used frequently, will assist in giving much better results when any fertilizers are used.

Large dark green leaves are the sign of a healthy, well-fed plant. Leaves which are affected by the white mildew, leaves which turn brown or russet, leaves which turn small, are all a definite sign that a deficiency has developed in the diet of the plant. The reason for this starvation must be determined quickly.

This deficiency, which allows a disease to develop, might be caused by the lack of only one or two minerals. There is no need to enlist the aid of a plant doctor or graduate scientist to find out what is needed. The use of any one of the balanced plant foods which contains a sufficiency of all the needed minerals will usually take care of the shortage.

Even with proper air circulation around the plants, and no harmful overhead sprinkling, some plants are liable to suffer from an airborne infestation of disease. Insects too, are liable to attack even the best plants.

The best way to avoid these troubles is to adopt a regular weekly spray program. Use a good brand of insect-disease combination spray. Thoroughly drench the plants with it once a week, taking great care to apply it to the new growth which has appeared since last week's application.

It is advisable to stake all chrysanthemum plants, but especially the taller ones, for their root structure is likely to "pull" out of the ground, if a strong fall wind should whip the plant at all. The staking will also help to keep the leaves and stems healthy. The flowers and leaves, the more they are handled, become the stronger and hold the plant up.

However, most people prefer a plentiful supply of smaller flowers bunched atop a strong stem. If this is your desire, just let mother nature alone; a lovely cluster of flowers will bloom at their appointed time.

With the hardy garden varieties, this program is a matter of the gardener's individual needs. If a few large flowers are desired, the side buds on each stem should be broken out of the leaf joints while they are quite small and the centre bud allowed to remain.

Last Wednesday Marked Anniversary of Young Scottish Adventurer After Whom Douglas Fir Was Named

By CECIL CLARK

One sunny afternoon in July, 1823, the rugged figure of a man, clad in deerskin coat and pants, stood rife in hand, critically eyeing a giant pine tree. Where he stood not only been tolerated, but has been cherished as a valuable member of society. In fact, the blacker the better because his ebony wool is prized for weaving those Cowichan sweaters. Which goes to show you there's a place in this world for everybody.

Cowichan Indians shun the use of dyed wools for their patterns because chemical dyes are apt to run and spoil the effect. Pure black, white and grey are the colors used; the grey is derived from a blend of black and white wools, taken from the deep grey wool of a black sheep that has a red tinge to its fleece. Like the rest of us, they begin to turn grey as they get older.

Whatever their hue, the sheep of Westholme Farms Ltd. will be missed by the local sweater industry when the farm goes out of wool production.

At present the Quists have about 100 head in their Holstein herd, and will have more when the sheep go. Every September they have a sale on the farm where they "get rid of all the young stuff," keeping the main herd for milking and breeding. Now in their late teens, Byrd and Norman are members of the South Island Holstein Club, and take an active interest in Junior Calf Club work. Last year their entries took nine prizes at the Cowichan Industrial and Agricultural Fair.

"There's no reason why young people shouldn't take to farming these days," Carl Quist said, "with good land and plenty of machinery it can be just as good as any other business."

Whirling, Douglas found himself surrounded by eight half-naked and painted Indians. Every one of them fingered an arrow in his bow. Plainly a war-party in a tight spot. But then he had seen many such adventures since he landed on the Columbia River the year before. In a few minutes the blonde young Scot had parleyed the warriors into a peaceful mood.

1823 ANNIVERSARY June 23, marks the 133rd anniversary of the birth of the man who, in his day, introduced more new plants and confers into Europe than any other person. Douglas loved plants from boyhood. First employment on leaving school was on the 1,000-acre estate of the Earl of Mansfield in Perthshire. Later, in Glasgow, he worked in the botanical gardens where his zeal caught the eye of William Jackson Hooker, famed Regius Professor of Botany at Glasgow University.

Then, like all good Scotsmen seeking fame and fortune, at 20 Douglas was in London, where with the commendation from Hooker, he commenced working as a collector for the famed Royal Horticultural Society.

It was first intended to send him to Asia; but a change of plans found him on the Atlantic coast of the United States. In New England he explored marshes and mountains for strange and unknown specimens. He made friends with Cox, the orchardist of Cox's Orange Pippin fame, and came back to England loaded with specimens of peaches. With 20 Douglas was assigned to what was loosely termed the Oregon country.

Back in England his discoveries had made him famous; there was back there was a boundary line, and when the only inhabitants were a few scattered Hudson's Bay traders.

In his first year after landing on the Columbia, Douglas traveled 2,000 miles on foot, canoe and horse. The next year he covered 4,000. Alone, except for his fox terrier dog, Douglas was his constant companion, which was his constant companion, on the Cascade glaciers, and swayed in the 100 plus heat of the Snake River country. Out at telewater he spent days soaked by torrential rain, and when he ran out of food made soup out of roots.

"THE GRASS MAN" To the Indians, most of whom had never seen a white man, he was known as "The Grass Man."

His travels took him south to Spanish California and north as far as B.C.'s Big Bend country.

In 1827 when he was due to return, instead of taking ship from Oregon he trudged across the plains to Hudson's Bay and caught ship there. It took him five months to cover the 2,000 miles, and that year he traveled 10,000 miles.

Looking into the muddy depths they saw the horror that Douglas (Kauka) — "The Doctor as they called him" — was in the pit, trampled to death by an enraged bull buffalo. From the footprints at the scene it was clear that Douglas had walked around the tree, just as he did when he peered over the rim, the bank must have caved in.

He was buried in the little native churchyard of Kawaiaha, and in the church is a bronze plaque to his memory. In the churchyard of his native Scone a 23-foot marble column records his life and death. On the back of the column is the long list of his botanical discoveries.

At the spot where he met his death is a stone cairn, and in 1934 — on the hundredth anniversary of the tragic event — the Burns Club of Hilo planted nearby a grove of Douglas firs.

But the greatest monument of all to David Douglas is the giant tree which bears his name.

Art in Review By PAUL MOCSANYI

The Belgian film company Sofel has produced a well documented picture on "Van Meegeren's faked Vermeers."

The case of Van Meegeren has to do with the fact that what we enjoy in a work of art is its genuine beauty and what we pay for is the genuineness of its signature.

Van Meegeren was arrested in 1945 for having sold to Goerting during the Nazi occupation a superb painting of the 17th century Dutch master Van Vermeer.

Van Meegeren defended himself by asserting that the picture—as well as half a dozen other recently discovered Vermeers—was a forgery executed by himself. The experts didn't believe him. The X-ray showed, however, that all the pictures were done in this century.

Van Meegeren died in prison for forgery. Instead of treason. His superb "Vermeers" have been taken off the walls of the museums.

Had he avowed from the start that his were no original Vermeers, the museums would have refused to buy them. Hundreds of thousands of people would have been deprived of the pleasure of seeing them.

When he sold them as originals, he was put in jail. Nevertheless he had positively enriched the world of art and, far from hurting the reputation of the great Vermeer, he has considerably enhanced his fame.

"Van Meegeren's faked Vermeers" concludes with a warning to the collectors not to follow in the footsteps of the 19th century critics who themselves be deluded by the beauty of a painting. Ours is they say, an industrial civilization; we should judge art by X-rays.

Back on the Columbia, he took ship to Hawaii, and arrived there on Christmas Day, 1833. Immediately the plunged into fresh exploration, and six months went quickly.

On July 9, 1834, he set off one morning from Kohala point on the northern end of the island of Hawaii to follow the 100-mile trail to Hilo.

KILLED BY BUFFALO He had been warned about the native practice of digging concealed pits to trap the wild buffalo, but the next afternoon passing natives noticed the quaint figure of a little

Frozen Pile Alters Playing Style

When the dealer turns up a wild card or a red three as the turn-up card, the discard pile is born frozen. This often has a decided effect on the tactics of both sides.

If you meld from your hand not unfreeze the pile, you do not freeze it. He cannot take the pile with a matching card and a wild card; he still needs a pair of natural cards that match the previous discard. However, your meld does release your partner of the need of making this initial count.

How much help does this represent? Considerable if the minimum count is 120 points. But if the meld is only 50 points, your help is probably not needed. When the required count is 80 points, the meld is sometimes a great help and sometimes unnecessary.

The next question is: What does it cost you to help your partner? If you must put down more than half of your hand to meld 120 points, you will then have trouble discarding. Hence there is great danger that your meld will give the discard pile to the enemy instead of to your partner.

STAMPS

NOTES ON SOME NEW ISSUES

According to further details from Ottawa regarding the new Red Cross stamp which is in the course of manufacture, only the blue border of the design will be engraved, the central portion in red being printed by the offset process.

This will probably mean that there will only be single plate numbers at the corners of the sheets after all, for if we are to take the precedent of the Christmas stamp of 1938, plate numbers are not used by printers except in the case of the engraved plates. (The Christmas stamp was printed in three colors, by the way. The border and outline of the map which constituted the design were engraved in black. The red portions of the map and the blue oceans were typographed.)

Hong Kong, following the example of so many other colonies, is raising its postal rates, which means that a number of color changes have to be made. The following stamps are to be altered (present colors shown in brackets)—5c yellow (green), 15c green (re-introduced after having been obsolete for some years), 20c brown (red), 25c red (olive), 30c grey (blue), 40c (new value), blue. The 2c will be withdrawn.

A new set for Tonga is expected soon. This south-sea island can't be accused of having misused its stamp issues for obtaining revenue from stamp collectors, for most of the current set has not changed since 1897! But it looks as if they were going to make up for lost time, for the new series is to run right up to the pound value, though hitherto a 5/- denomination has sufficed. Most of the designs will be pictorial.

The new Leeward Islands £1 stamp, showing the late King's portrait in bright violet instead of dull purple, has been found with the watermark sideways for the first time. Only a portion of a sheet has turned up so far.

There seems to be a general feeling that the forthcoming issues for Queen Elizabeth will be simple portrait stamps, instead of the pictorial which featured the George VI sets.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

My sincere thanks to the three kind gentlemen with the peavies, sledge hammers and planks who fixed our bridge out Albert Head way.

Sorry you had to work in the rain, men. Now, if you happen to have a scraper that isn't busy and would like to run it over Duke Road a couple of times...

My favorite wife is an imported product, from Surrey, to be exact.

She has lived in Canada for the major part of her life, but her first visit to Victoria occurred last December.

Since then, she has been trying to figure out why Victoria is called "A Little Bit of England."

This morning she looked out the window and announced that she had the solution.

It is not the verdant gardens or the blooming roses.

It is not the flower baskets on the streets, or the English accents in the lobby of the Empress Hotel.

It is certainly not the pubs.

It is the !! % & + !!! @ weather!

I am glad I wrote that. It reminds me that we have a wedding anniversary tomorrow.

Wedding anniversaries are better than birthdays.

Birthdays make you sad because you are growing older.

Anniversaries make you glad, because you are growing older together.

My old friend Bruce West, of the Toronto Globe & Mail, had an anniversary recently—the 17th. And he used the occasion to make a calculation, the results of which seem to summarize the tribulations of married life.

Bruce likes tea, but he does not like hot tea.

So, when he has a cup of tea, he sips away gingerly until the cup is about two-thirds full, at which time it has achieved the correct temperature, and he can finish it in a gulp or two.

But his wife is a thoughtful wife and, whenever she sees his partly emptied cup, she fills it up with hot tea.

Bruce, being innocent and trusting like most husbands, then tilts back the cup and burns his tongue.

He figures that, in 17 years, he has been scalded 6,543 times.

And he can't complain, because his wife is just being helpful.

I submit that the greatest peril to a happy married life is a wife trying to be helpful.

I have just learned that there either is or was or will be a rabbit week, during which you are or were or will be urged to eat rabbit.

Such slogans as "Get the Rabbit Habit," and "Save Money—Eat a Bunny," are called for.

And those who object will be accused of splitting hares.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

With a new crew, new owners, and a new name, the former Ss. Cliffside cleared Esquimalt Harbor this morning, Vancouver-bound for a cargo of grain.

The ship, sold this week by Andros Shipping Co. of Montreal, has been re-named Nikl by her Greek owners. She will be of Liberian registry, when transfer is completed.

Her Canadian crew was paid off this week, and a Greek crew arrived by air Friday.

Possible explosion of an oil truck was averted this week by the fast work of Central Saanich firemen using chemical extinguishers and water-fog.

Fire was caused by a short in the wiring system.

The truck was badly damaged.

Black Ball Line will add the 50-car ferry, Ss. Malahat, to its Victoria-Port Angeles run July 1. The schedule for the balance of the summer will be:

Leave Victoria 8 and 9.35 a.m., 12.15 and 2.35 p.m.; leave Port Angeles 5.45 and 10.10 a.m., 12.05 and 2.35 p.m.

Dangerous driving cost motorist Charles A. Pickett, 1315 Yates, a $75 fine and a six-month suspension of his driver's license in police court today.

He was arrested by city police Friday night after a collision between two cars, blamed by traffic officer Douglas Grant, on negligent driving on the part of Pickett.

Grant said Pickett was on the wrong side of the road.

An Ontario woman has written city police for their help in locating an aunt she has not seen in 25 years.

Mrs. John G. Fraser of Stratford said her aunt's name is either Mrs. Lilly Fern or Hien and had three children—Pearl, Marian and Wilfred.

Mrs. Fraser's maiden name was Violet Irene Thompson of Brandon, Man.

Three men and a 17-year-old boy were committed for trial in a higher court Friday on a charge of rape following their preliminary hearing in provincial court before Magistrate A. I. Thomas.

Charged are Bhag Singh, 33, of 803 Queens; John H. Brenton, 25, same address; Edward J. Murphy, 19, of 2541 Empire and the juvenile.

Bhag Singh is free on $7,500 bail.

CATHEDRAL'S PICNIC PARTY CROSSES GULF FOR HOLIDAY

The annual Christ Church Cathedral picnic took on an international flavor this year when officials decided to stage the big outing at Port Angeles' Sequim Park. Nearly 300 happy picnickers jammed aboard Mv. Chinook this morning to make the crossing. The picnic usually is held in Mount Douglas Park, but those in charge felt like "branching out" this year.

Rev. J. J. Van der Leest, assistant priest at the Cathedral, is in charge of the flock during the one-day affair. He admitted this morning he and his assistants are going to have their hands full. Games will play a big role in the day's activities.

Prowler's Policeman Pose Fails to Fool Housewife

Transom Climber Shows His Feet, Makes Fast Exit

A prowler posing as an R.C.M.P. officer entered one home Friday night and was chased out of the yard of a second one by a housewife.

Mrs. J. L. Shrimpton, 1210 Fort told city police she saw a man in the back garden and when she told him to get out he replied in accented English: "Quiet, I am an R.C.M.P. officer."

But he left immediately.

A man using a similar ruse, posing as an R.C.M.P. officer, entered the home of A. Davidson, 750 Pemberton, through an open window and woke up Davidson and his wife by flashing a light on them.

He told them he was a member of the R.C.M.P.

Later in the night, Betty Short, 1013 Vancouver, woke to hear the transom over her door move and saw a man's feet appear. He disappeared when she turned on the light.

CAR PROWLED

Prowlers were responsible for theft of a radio and aerial from a car parked in the Olson Motors lot on Yates.

Wallie Smith told police the theft occurred overnight on June 27.

David H. Carley, 23 Menzies, told police someone took a $40 wrist watch from his car parked at the Island Tug and Barge lot sometime in the past three weeks while he was away on a tug.

SOCREDS PLAN

British Columbia's Social Credit League will hold an executive meeting in Vancouver immediately after election results are known, Ronald Worley, chairman of the Vancouver Island Social Credit Area Council, said today.

Date of the meeting has not been set, he said, but the party will discuss the party's position and future action.

He said the Island council will also meet in Nanaimo July 4 to discuss the general political situation, and will make recommendations to be discussed at the executive meeting in Vancouver.

The announcement of a Social Credit "top brass" party completes the list of post-election meetings to be held by all four parties in the province.

C.C.F. will stage a provincial executive policy meeting July 12 in Vancouver, the Progressive Conservatives will meet July 7 in Vancouver, and the Liberals have decided to hold a top level meeting after the election. Location and date hasn't been decided.

Buckholtz Rock Buoy, Quatsino Sound, is two and one-half miles out of position, and has drifted onto a reef southeast of Cross Island. The buoy was previously reported drifting, and will be replaced as soon as possible.

MRS. MARY SHRIMPTON

Cayuga Gets New Firepower During Refit

New three-inch, 50-calibre rapid fire guns will be mounted in H.M.C.S. Cayuga during her refit at H.M.C. Dockyard.

This will be the first time that a destroyer in the Pacific command is equipped with guns adapted from United States Navy design.

The new gun mounting will be built aft and will entail considerable changes in Cayuga's present after superstructure. It will be a twin mount, which will throw the three-inch projectiles, and raise the ship's fire-power considerably.

The new guns will be in addition to her present armament of quick-firing four-inch guns, 20-mm. Oerlikons, and 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Cayuga returned two weeks ago after her second tour of duty in Korea. She was built in 1945 by Halifax Shipyards, is 355 feet long and displaces 2,000 tons.

The three-inch, 50-calibre guns are being made in Sorel, Quebec, and are now a standard item in "alterations and additions" for destroyers—meaning that all Canadian destroyers will receive this armament as they come in for refit.

Total Vote of 750,072 Cast Count Reveals

Ballots totaling 750,072 were cast in British Columbia's June 12 election.

This is the record figure compiled today by provincial election officials as Chief Electoral Officer Fred Hurley received the last of first-count reports.

Vision No Help in Hunt For Woman Missing Here

By R. E. PORTER

A dream that he thought might lead to the finding of his missing sister has proved disappointing to Donald Cavanaugh, a middle-aged farmer of the Calgary area.

Cavanaugh, after spending two weeks in Victoria and Vancouver following up his vision, said he has been unable to find any trace of Mrs. Olive J. Law of 1803 Chandler, who disappeared just over a year ago, after going from Victoria to Vancouver on the night boat.

In Vancouver Cavanaugh said he is returning to Calgary this week-end, but he is fearful his sister may have come to some harm because she was carrying $2,000 worth of jewelry.

Cavanaugh's dream was that if he could talk with all of Mrs. Law's close friends someone would drop the one little clue that might tell him where she was.

HATES TO QUIT
"I hate to go back knowing so little about the fate of my sister," he said. "But I have to get back to my farm outside Calgary as this is a busy time of year."

"During the last two weeks I have seen or phoned 24 of Olive's friends in Victoria. I could spend another two weeks in Vancouver doing the same thing."

Cavanaugh's visit to the coast is the latest in a series of investigations by both police and John S. Law, her husband, seeking the missing woman.

She went to Vancouver by boat after a domestic disagreement with her husband last June. She was to have contacted him within a month, but did not do so.

Over a period of several months last fall and earlier this year Mr. Law and police officers probed every possible lead for ber of her family where she had gone.

"I am at my wits' end," he said. "I have thought about nothing else for months. I realize the authorities can do only so much through official channels. I feel it is my duty as her brother to keep searching. I will be back again when I can continue the search."

Mr. Law said he feels that every avenue has been explored in the months of searching and "I wish someone could give me more ideas to follow up."

Defense counsel Arthur Dawe drew a further reprimand in police court today from Magistrate H. C. Hall over statements he had made to the court regarding a client.

Mr. Dawe appeared on behalf of Allan Johansen, Lincoln Hotel, charged with obtaining goods by false pretences from the clothing firm of Murdoch-Girard.

Mr. Dawe told the court June 20 it was his understanding that his client had been placed in jail and the charge laid by an official of the firm, who then left on a vacation in California.

He objected to a lengthy remand on grounds that the firm's representative should have stayed in the city.

A transcript of the evidence was produced in court today containing Mr. Dawe's remarks on the day in question.

Mr. Dawe said he "didn't intend to make that statement" during a brief argument today involving the court, city prosecutor Alan Bigelow and court clerk William Ostler.

"Don't you see, Mr. Dawe, that you made a statement to the court that was incorrect?" asked Magistrate Hall. "... I rely on what members of the bar say," said the magistrate.

Mr. Dawe continued his argument but was cut short by the magistrate.

"I don't propose to have any further argument," he said. Prosecutor Alan Bigelow added: "No arrangements were made to lay a charge against the man" (Johansen) before the company officer left on vacation.

The defendant was remanded to July 2.

Al Reside took the Victoria Building Industries Exchange 4th Annual Golf Tournament with 76-14-62, and Gordon Verley carded 75 for low gross honors.

The tournament was held Friday at Royal Colwood.

CRYSTAL GARDEN SWIMMER SAVED BY LIFEGUARDS

A seven-year-old boy was saved from drowning at the Crystal Garden pool by the alert work of lifeguards Fred Allison and Stan Powell.

Resting comfortably at St. Joseph's Hospital today after he was found lying in six feet of water at the bottom of the pool Friday is Billy Marriott, 520 Toronto.

The youngster was given artificial respiration by the two lifeguards and a city fire department inhalator crew under deputy fire chief James Baylis.

Motor Bike Driver Hurt in Collision

A motorcyclist received minor injuries Friday afternoon when he collided with a car at Ash and Begbie.

Police took Robert A. McLaughlin, 2071 Newton, to Jubilee Hospital suffering cuts and bruises when his machine struck a car being driven by Laura J. Sands, 1550 McCrae Avenue.

A baby in Mrs. Sands' car was uninjured.

They involved cars driven by William G. Brander, 730 Craigflower, and William Mullen, 210 Government, at Craigflower and Alderman Road, and cars driven by Richard B. McKinney, 658 Niagara, and Thomas J. Wallace, 1264 Gladstone, at Cook and Pandora.

Motorist Allan D. Chestnut, 18, of 1238 Tattersall, escaped injury Friday when his delivery truck skidded on North Quadra at Douglas and tore out 24 feet of guard rail.

Victorians to Visit Birthplace in Wales
Five Victoria members of the Welsh Society, who are leaving to visit the land of their birth, were given a farewell party by the society Friday.

The travelers are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley James, W. Davis, Mrs. S. Stuart and Mrs. Elsie Hopkins.

(A PLUS) ENCORE (Odeon)—Somerset Maugham, recognized as one of the master story-tellers of our day, owes his reputation to his almost uncanny ability of getting inside his characters. This usually ends with his reader knowing more about a character than he does about himself.

"Encore," successor to Mr. Maugham's brilliant "Quartet" and "Trio," is a series of three short stories on film with unrelated themes. Each of them bases its being on nothing more solid than the author's ability to delineate character. The results are happy indeed. The first two are comedies and the last a love story. Although none of them has anything so intricate that might be described as a plot I'll wager you'll be remembering odds and bits from them long after you have forgotten longer, much more pretentious efforts. The three, "The Ant and the Grasshopper," "Winter Cruise" and "Gigolo and Gigolette" are built upon polished acting, discriminating choice of character, and Mr. Maugham's flawless lines.

Of the three I think I preferred (really it's splitting hairs) "Winter Cruise." Here was play-wrighting and acting at its best. There were no plots, counter-plots, gimmicks or "plants"—only a magnificently funny piece of acting by Kay Walsh, who plays the part of a loquacious spinster, Miss Reid, who is bound she is going to enjoy herself during the cruise if it kills her—and everyone else.

As a foil to the comedy, "Gigolo and Gigolette," was in splendid relief. Glynis Johns as Stella Cotnam entertains the thrill-seeking by diving from an 80-foot platform into a flaming tank. Fearing she is losing her husband, Syd Cotnam (Terence Morgan), she loses her nerve for her act. In some thrilling photography the lovely Miss Johns recovers both.

"The Ant and the Grasshopper" is another of Mr. Maugham's carefully portrayed conflicts, this time between two brothers, one stuffy (Roland Culver) and the other a harum-scarum (Nigel Patrick). This is delightful spoofing, a film that keeps the house in a continuous chuckle.

Please see this one—you'll enjoy 'em all.

Mrs. John Gough Heads Conservatory Alumni

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Reports of an active year were heard Friday night by members of the Victoria Chapter, Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto Alumni, at their annual meeting.

Concerts had been sponsored, receptions for visiting musicians held, and the Marion McGovern Scholarship again presented at the musical festival.

The meeting was held in the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Milburn, Cadboro Bay Road.

Mrs. John Gough was elected president, and other officers are:

Vice-president, Mrs. T. H. Johns; corresponding secretary, Miss Helen Graham; recording secretary, Miss Dorothy Ellis; treasurer, Miss Joyce Richardson.

Head of committees are: Program, Mrs. E. Lasenby; social, Mrs. D. L. Gilbert; publicity, Miss Noel Smith; chapter historian, Mrs. Maurice Chandler.

The business part of the evening concluded with the presentation of a handsome silver bracelet to the retiring president, Mrs. Chandler. The presentation was made on behalf of the membership by Mrs. D. L. Gilbert.

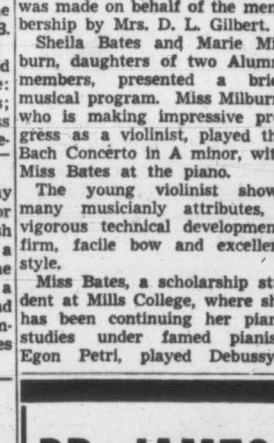

Sheila Bates and Marie Milburn, daughters of two Alumni members, presented a brief musical program. Miss Milburn, who is making impressive progress as a violinist, played the Bach Concerto in A minor, with Miss Bates at the piano.

The young violinist shows many musicianly attributes, a vigorous technical development, firm, facile bow and excellent style.

Miss Bates, a scholarship student at Mills College, where she has been continuing her piano studies under famed pianist, Egon Petri, played Debussy's reports.

"Reflets dans l'eau" and the Chopin Ballade in G minor. She is one of the rare people to whom music is as natural as speech; whose pianism is so fluent, so effortless, that it seems inborn. She is possessed now of a shining virtuosity, an inevitably ripening maturity.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Even Measuring Spoons Have Been Remodeled

By PENNY SAVER

You know, you've got to hand it to the manufacturers of kitchen utensils. They're geniuses, one and all. Take for instance, the gadget I saw yesterday.

It was an ultra-modern measuring spoon. You may think that measuring spoons come in one style, and one style only. Well, I'm going to tell you about the 1952 model of measuring spoon.

Instead of having a number of confusing little spoons dangling from a ring, you get the whole works in one piece.

When you hold the spoon in one position you will discover that it is styled with a measuring scoop at either end, and then when you turn it over, the other side is the other two measures.

So there you have it. One tsp., tsp. half a tsp. and a quarter tsp. all in one piece.

Fifteen pennies will add it to your kitchen gadgets.

There's a treat in store for you if you happen to be one of the many that love tweed perfume.

For some reason or other the unusual scent of tweed rates it very highly with most people.

At regular prices you pay $3.25 for a decanter of the perfume, but at the moment there's a special on and "lucky of you" can buy a whole decanter of it for $1.95.

That's a bargain if I ever saw one.

You'll probably want to kill me for telling you about this next item. There's no getting away from it. It's a luxury... and how!

Designed especially for modern living is the outdoor barbecue on wheels.

Boy, oh boy! You'll just wilt when you see them. They're gorgeous. The most lavish of the portable barbecues is priced at $72.50, but there are smaller ones, minus a few extras, which sell for $7.50.

If you happen to splurge and purchase one of these barbecues you'll find yourself eating breakfast, lunch and dinner in the back yard.

Suffer From Insomnia? Slow Down and Relax

Only those who have suffered with insomnia know what an effect it can have on living. Practically everyone has had the experience of lying awake at night once in a while, but the man or woman who is chronically short on sleep is also chronically tired. He or she is also apt to be irritable. Loss of sleep cannot continue indefinitely without a physical crackup.

Even those who have no trouble getting to sleep often short change themselves by habitually staying up too late. Sometimes the addition of two hours more sleep at night will make all the difference between vitality and fatigue. This is one of the recognized factors in feeling tired all the time. The habit of hurrying all day long is another. There is more than one instance on record in which a physician cured chronic fatigue in a patient by simply insisting that she never hurry.

If you are a victim of insomnia here are a few things to remember:

1. Relax before going to sleep. Do not jump from the rush of the day or evening right into bed. This relaxation can come from mild exercise, a tepid bath, a short reading period or one spent listening to soothing music. You must drop the tensions of the day before going to bed or you will probably be restless when you get in bed.

2. Worry about insomnia is one contributing cause. Perhaps for some reason you have what would have been temporary trouble getting to sleep. A short period like this is nothing to worry about. If you adopt the attitude of thinking, "I wonder

TODAY'S RECIPE

GOOSEBERRY JELLY

Five and one-half cups (2½ lbs.) juice, 7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar, 1 box powdered fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about 4½ lbs. or 3 quarts fully ripe gooseberries. Add 1 cup water, bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If there is a slight shortage of juice, add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again).

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a 5 to 6-quart saucepan and place over hottest heat. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 12 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Regency Treasures Exhibited

BRIGHTON, Eng. (CP)—Canadian visitors to Britain in July will have an opportunity of visiting the Regency Exhibition to be held in the Royal Pavilion here July 12-Sept. 14.

Among the treasures on view will be the wedding ring given by the Prince Regent—later King George IV—to Mrs. Maria Anne Fitzherbert at their marriage in 1785. The marriage was later declared null and void because it had taken place without the King's consent. The ring is split and the two halves move on a pin to reveal the inscription "Maria-George."

The ring has been lent, together with a pair of miniatures by Richard Cosway, famous painter of the period, by the Earl of Portlandington, a descendant of Mrs. Fitzherbert's family.

In this reconstruction of Regency splendor some of the exhibits which attracted wide attention last year will be repeated, but there will be many new features. The scene of a Royal banquet will be recreated with valuable plate lent by the City of London, the Goldsmiths' Company and many others.

One collection of outstanding interest will be the personal relics of the unhappy Princess Charlotte, daughter of George IV and Queen Caroline. Charlotte died little more than a year after her marriage in 1816 to Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg.

BOARD URGES MORE WOMEN WITH U.N.

NEW YORK, June 28 (AP)—More trained women for positions with the United Nations secretariat has been urged by the board of the International Business and Professional Women.

At its annual meeting yesterday, the board said in a resolution that women "are not as yet adequately represented either in the secretariat of the United Nations and specialized agencies, or as delegates representing governments."

The board urged national federations to "encourage their trained and experienced women to apply for service in these positions and that they suggest to their governments qualified women be included as delegates in all international meetings."

Take advantage of low lard prices to stretch your food dollar. For tender, flaky pastry, use lard. How much to use? One cup of lard with 3 cups of sifted pastry flour and 1½ teaspoons salt makes enough pastry for three large pie crusts.

A Memory of Lad's Coming of Age Starts 'I Am a Canadian' Day Here

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Her dark brown eyes softened with memories and her quiet voice deepened with the intensity of her thoughts, Mrs. A. C. Ross looks back across the years to an event she feels gave her the idea that has grown into "I Am a Canadian Day."

"It was many years ago in Ontario," she tells you, "when a young lad living near my home, celebrated his 21st birthday."

"That morning he got up with the dawn and ran down the stairs shouting at the top of his voice, 'wake up, wake up everybody. Today I am a man.'"

Looking back in later years at that happening, Mrs. Ross came to the belief that all young people experience a special thrill on their 21st birthdays and, if that was so, then they would welcome some special event to mark the day as a thing apart.

She visualized a ceremony to be held each year that would symbolize to them, and to all Canadians the priceless value of citizenship.

TAKES IT TO CITY

She went with her idea to Andrew McGavin, then Mayor of Victoria, but, while he was interested he thought the thing was too big for the city and said it should be a Dominion government project.

Mrs. Ross then wrote to R. W. Mayhew, federal member for Victoria. Although the war effort prevented him from taking any action at the time, Mr. Mayhew was interested and gave assistance later.

In 1947, when he learned that Hon. Paul Martin was expecting to visit the coast, he wrote to Mayor Percy George of Victoria, suggesting that citizenship ceremonies be held and that Mr. Martin, who as secretary of state had piloted Canada's new citizenship act through the House, be invited to speak.

The mayor did not consider it advisable for the city to adopt the proposal.

Mrs. Ross was, at the time, convener of citizenship for the Local Council of Women. So, she took the proposal to them.

They accepted the challenge and made plans for holding the ceremony on the Sunday before Dominion Day that year.

The event was sponsored by the Local Council, Men's and Women's Canadian Club, the Canadian Daughters' League and the Sons of Canada. The city co-operated by providing the setting in Beacon Hill Park. Mayor George acted as chairman.

Mrs. A. C. Ross, who dreamed a dream and has seen it come to fulfillment in the ceremony to be held for the sixth year on Sunday in Beacon Hill Park. (Photo by Tommie Walters.)

Mr. Martin could not get to the coast and Hon. E. T. Kenney, minister of lands and forests, gave the address.

"So many people helped us with that first program," Mrs. Ross says, "so you must not give me all the credit."

"The pledge, that is such an important part of the event, is the work of Miss Ellen Hart," she continued, "and it is still used each year, just as she wrote it."

Remembering that first program and the first time the pledge was repeated, Mrs. Ross says, "we had composed the pledge with the idea that only the young people coming of age would repeat it. But we discovered when the time came that everyone stood up and repeated the inspiring words. It seemed to be a renewed pledge of loyalty taken seriously and quietly by every person there."

"It did my heart good to hear it!"

To Make Home in Hongkong

Miss Hinksman was formerly employed at the Sidney Roofing and Paper Company.

Gillian Bonnell Wed In St. Mark's Church

Masses of pink and white carnations decorated St. Mark's Church last evening for the wedding ceremony which united Gillian Sheila Bonnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Bonnell, Saanich Road, and Norman Robert Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Murphy, Asquith Street, Canon R. Willis officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown styled with lace bodice and full skirt of fine nylon net topped with a matching jacket with lily point sleeves and dainty Peter Pan collar. A finger-tip length veil of fine nylon net misted from a coronet of red rosebuds. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli and red rosebuds. Her only jewelry was a gold and pearl pendant which belongs to her mother.

Mrs. W. R. Shipley, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina-length gown of powder blue net trimmed with pink rosebuds and complemented with a matching stole. Pink and white carnations formed a coronet in her hair and she carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and sweet peas.

Kenneth Murphy was best man for his brother and ushers were A. M. Bonnell, brother of the bride, and David Justice.

At a reception in the Matterhorn, Cordova Bay, the bride's table was centred with a three-tier cake topped with sweetheart roses and embedded in white tulle dotted with roses. H. Sherrill dropped the toast to the bride.

In Step With Style

18 Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1952

Enjoying the perfect setting for a party in the garden of Mrs. H. Weldon, Pemberton Road, are left to right, Mrs. H. W. Doherty, Mrs. L. A. d'Arcy and Mrs. H. G. Ellis. Mrs. Doherty wears a blue and white striped organza dress for summer warmth. Perky bows add a jaunty touch to the short puffed sleeves and the waist is nipped with a velvet bow. Her turn-about hat of green Milan straw is also touched with velvet trim. Navy sunshine linen touched with a slash of pink braid fashions the garden party dress modeled by Mrs. d'Arcy. Her cloche hat of lace medallions is daintily dotted with rhinestones. Pink silk shantung lends itself for garden party weather. Mrs. Ellis shows a dress of this material attractively styled with bow effect at the hip. It is complemented by a cartwheel of natural tuscan trimmed with velvet and poppies. (Photos by Strickland.)

Gay Frocks and Large Hats On Garden Party Horizon

Tea served on the lawn... a soft breeze fanning the summer warmth... distant strains of soft music! It's garden party time! Cartwheel hats frame tanned faces and summer frocks create a colorful pattern against garden greenery. Highlight of the summer season in Victoria is the garden party at Government House — this year on Wednesday, July 9. For such an event feminine guests don their most attractive summer frocks, many of them new for the occasion. Worn first at Government House they later go on to other garden affairs crowding the summer social calendar. Parties may include the colorful fete planned by the women's committee of the Victoria Symphony Society at "Arlow Farm" country home of Capt. and

Mrs. Massy Gooden, on July 23. Season's styles in these attractive dresses for such events are everything the feminine heart may desire as can be judged from those shown in these pictures. If you follow fashion trends, and you are going to a garden party, you will more than likely look for a dress with a soft full skirt urged to stiffness with a crinoline. Novel treatment at the neckline will attract your interest, too. Ribbons of material may weave a lattice around your neck, artificial flowers may nestle in a protruding cuff, or contrasting colors may frame the outline at the neck. Sleeves are unpredictable. They may not be there at all and if they are you're never quite sure what length they are going to be—whether they will fall loosely away from the arm or bind it in a sheath. In the East, navy and even black, take prominence in summer garden party frocks this season. Not so here! The range is unlimited and we are taking full advantage of it. While we do admire the muted colors we cannot fail to notice the freshness and gaiety of summer's colors. Soft blues, bright yellows, melting pinks, tangerines and cool greens tint such fabrics as nylon, linen, shantung, silk and cotton. One and two-piece dresses vie for foremost popularity and stepping quickly into the fashion picture is the halter top dress which can be topped with a jaunty bolero jacket for day-time wear. All the frocks are lovely! And they deserve equally as charming accessories. This applies primarily to your hat.

Large brimmed garden party hats eliminate the need of a parasol. The brim may be styled with stubborn stiffness or it may dip mischievously. No matter what the style the cartwheel will add striking smartness to your garden party ensemble. Cool, crisp and chic, describes the summer cap. It caressingly molds itself over the crown to fit neatly among short clipped curls. There are endless styles and touches used to vary the basic cap and make it look as though it was made especially for you. Large or small, the discreet and stylish woman will be wary of the shade of the hat and amount of trim used so that it will not take from her ensemble.

Looking forward to the gay round of garden parties this season are Miss Heather Hughes, left, and Miss Sally Laundry. An Italian tuscan hat with embroidered crown and Milan flare brim complements the pink linen dress modeled by Miss Hughes. The flattering neckline is touched with daisies and repeated on the belt. They are detachable in both places. An aqua nylon and orlon frock is worn by Miss Laundry. The halter bodice is topped with a bolero jacket appliqued with white flowers. The floral effect is repeated on the pockets. Old Battenburg pattern has been created in mohair on the hat. The large flouncy brim is trimmed with velvet and forget-me-knots.

Soft Lines Flattering

Summer's suit silhouette is one of soft, feminine lines. The dressmaker suit is definitely here and the stiff lines of the squared shoulders, absolutely straight skirt that we've worn so many years have been replaced with rounded shoulders, arched hips with accent on the waistline. It may be a natural waistline, or a little above or below, but the waist is cinched in. Usually the jacket just covers the hips and sometimes only extends a bit beyond the waistline. There are full skirts with the suits but not the exaggerated full blown skirts of last season. This year's are slimmer, gored and pleated. Even the slimmest skirts appear to have ease and softness. For the tweed die-hards are some handsome fabrics, softer than usual, smart colors and color combinations, with full or three-quarter-length coats to match or contrast. You will like this season's suits, the varied fabrics and the wide range in colors.

Wasp Waistline Fashion's Whim For 1952 Summertime Good Looks

The girl with the spreading waistline had better diet, otherwise she won't be able to keep with 1952 summer styles. In a survey of the 'b-b-and-tucker' industry discovered that suits with "that nipped-in, rounded look" are all the rage this year. But the short, full jackets may create more hips than style to figures already "rounded" by winter fat. At Edmonton, fashion experts emphasized that suits will be more feminine in appearance than last year. There will be more detail in the sleeves. And more bad news for Hippy Hannah—suit skirts will be "very full." Styles at Regina were described as "entirely new, gay and beautiful." Favorite colors with western women will be "shrimp," a new coral shade, and navy.

Across Canada brides may forsake the traditional floor-touching gown of satin for a perky cock-tail-length model of nylon net. One of Toronto's large department stores has the short wedding gown in a window display. Montreal designers are accentuating button-holes with satin and braid. The leather belt is coming back on tweed suits. The long fitting lines of the "princess-style" coat also has returned. Many of these garments are lined with bright material. At Winnipeg, fashion-wise women already are wearing silk prints and white or near-white coats. Those in the know say dress styles in Winnipeg are "reminiscent of 1929." Dresses have adopted the "middy line," and newest box jackets taper toward the hip-line. "Bat-wing" jackets, "windmill" jackets, "tucked dickies," and bow-ties will be trotted out for Vancouver's feminine trade. In the Maritimes, milady will continue to wear the crinoline petticoat made popular last season. In Halifax, fashionable women will wear their dresses 13 inches from the ground. Corduroy matched skirts and jackets in vivid shades of lilac, chartreuse and coral also are expected to attract buyers. Finally, wherever she lives, the little woman probably will buy a

Nylons Become Flowers

Imagine your nylons going to your head. That's just what they will be doing if you are one of the many budget-conscious women who would like to know how to convert old nylons into lovely flowers for trimming hats. To do the job properly, you'll need a few boxes of color remover, all-fabric dye, porcelain or agate pans, a wooden spoon for the color-removing and tinting operations, ordinary copper screening, floral tape, scissors, corsage pins, and, of course, the discarded nylons. The first step is to remove as much color from the nylons as possible with a color remover that doesn't require boiling. Next, re-dye the stockings in whatever color you like. Don't forget to dye some of the fabric green—to use as leaves. As soon as the nylons have dried, cut the stockings into three- to five-inch squares. Unravel eight-inch strands of wire from the copper screening for the petals and leaves. You can make the petals and leaves by folding a square of dyed nylon over the wire strand. Carefully stretch out the nylon. Bend the wire to any flower form you like. Gather the stretched-out fabric at the bottom and fasten it with wire. Part of the wire should be left to act as the stem. Trim off excess fabric. Look! You've just made one petal. Now make as many as you desire. Form the flower by bringing the petals together and tying them at the base with wire. Cover the exposed wires with green floral tape. As soon as your flowers are finished, you can use them as hair ornaments, decorations for your hats, or even as a corsage. They offer you endless possibilities.

Indian Trend Popular

Free and easy summer fashions will be more decorative, and prettier than ever. Grey or brown denim is used for a belted tunic top over matching shorts, the top smartly embroidered in silver nailhead and turquoise bead embroidery in characteristic American Indian motifs. The West, incidentally, is going all out for the American Indian trend in sports and casual wear—colorful, pretty, different and certainly indigenous.

The Jeweled Touch

For Daily Wear—Fraternal pins, with some of the meaningful attachments omitted, are making news in the jewelry world. One New York designer and manufacturer is finding a market for emblems primarily created for ladies' benevolent societies. One example is a palladium pin fashioned for past matrons of the Order of the Eastern Star, easily converted into an attractive piece for daytime or evening wear.

Classic Designs Lose Popularity—Diamond—engagement—and informal rings are moving from their traditionally classic lines into the realm of modern design. Latest innovations include a palladium ring in a curving, circular design, imparting rhythm and grace to the stone. In other styles, two or three gems are set in rhythmic sequence on one palladium shank. Circular Settings Emphasize Stones—Discovery of the fact that diamonds seem to take on added fire when set in the precious white metal palladium has opened up a new field for circular settings. New York designers say. The traditional square setting, according to stylists, does not accentuate the brilliant gems to as great a degree.

THIS WEEK'S THUMBNAIL... Jane Morgan may make you laugh as Eve Arden's landlady on the "Our Miss Brooks" program Sundays on CJOR and CJVI, but she's equally funny on the many other radio shows on which she is a regular. However, the real Jane Morgan is a serious, sensible, and dignified lady of radio, whose favorite subject in philosophy and whose lifetime dream is to amass a million dollars with which to hire a staff of practical nurses to relieve tired mothers who would then be sent on a well-earned vacation. She became one of Hollywood's most demanded character actresses by way of violin lessons and voice training. Her childhood ambition was to be a violinist, so she studied at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, then added voice training to her curriculum. After graduation she became affiliated with the Boston Opera Company, where she doubled as violinist and singer.

A subsequent operatic role, which demanded some dramatic interpretation, introduced her to that branch of the arts, and from then on she leaned more toward the acting field. It wasn't long before she decided to devote all her energies to the legitimate theatre. Primarily a character actress,

Miss Morgan then toured the country in road companies with such stars as Charlotte Greenwood and Barbara Stanwyck. Born in England of Welsh parents she came to America at the age of one, and is the only member of her family which includes one brother and one sister—who ever had theatrical ambitions. Her first job at the Boston Opera Company paid only $25 a week but it brought dividends in the way of romance. Leo Cullen Bryant was also a violinist with the opera company, and it wasn't long before they decided to tread the middle aisle together. Bryant soon became director of the orchestra and it wasn't long before she found herself taking direction from her own husband as she enacted leading roles in the company's presentations.

She made her radio debut in 1930 in a program which featured the old-time movie actor, Lew Cody. In the years which followed she found herself enacting roles on such programs as the "Jack Benny Program," "Bob Hope Show," "Radio Theatre," "Dr. Christian," and "Our Miss Brooks." Now a proud grandmother, she lives in the San Fernando Valley and just does on her little granddaughter, who, she admits, is her major hobby. Her second and most important hobby is collecting Oriental art treasures, of which she has many valuable items.

HIGHEST SPENDING IN HISTORY 1952

OTTAWA, June 28 (CP)—The trade department today forecast a strengthening of the Canadian price structure for 1952 and the highest spending in history on the development of industry and expansion of government.

Completing a comprehensive mid-year survey of the Canadian economic heartbeat, the department estimated:

1. The price of industrial machinery and equipment and other capital goods will average higher this year than in 1951. Wholesale prices have declined in recent months, but officials said industrial wages and the price of steel, backbone of industry, likely will climb.

2. Public and private capital investment, the money spent by industry and government on expansion of services and production facilities, will reach a peak $3,181,000,000 despite declines in the development of new housing, wholesale and retail trade, forestry and commercial services.

3. Spending on maintenance and repair of buildings and equipment will reach a record $2,014,000,000, making total spending on investment and maintenance of $7,195,000,000, against last year's $6,451,000,000.

INVESTMENT TREND
The investment trend is one of the keynotes to Canadian prosperity and an indication of the country's fast economic pace.

The mid-year estimate is more optimistic than the forecast at the beginning of the year. Economists then placed the year's investment at $6,451,000,000.

Charge Foreign Interests Control Manitoba Sugar Co.

WINNIPEG, June 27 (CP)—The Manitoba Sugar Company at its annual meeting yesterday announced replacement of seven members of the board of directors, including president G. H. Atkins.

The new president, Sir Charles Tupper of Winnipeg, said today three of the seven directors were offered seats on the board but declined to accept. Changes had been caused by "differences in opinion" among previous members. There would be no changes in company operation.

A former director who declined to permit use of his name said "foreign interests" had gained control of the company and replaced directors had refused to act as "fronts."

Four directors re-elected are Baron P. G. Kronacker of Brussels, first vice-president; G. E. Neuman de Vegvar, New York, second vice-president; R. Abras, Winnipeg, general manager, and Baron Neuman de Vegvar, New York.

New directors are E. J. Kramer, Winnipeg, treasurer and assistant secretary; M. A. Frank and Robert Savoye of New York, and A. R. Grisar, Brussels. Retired directors are Col. A. K. Ains, A. S. Leach and W. H. Carter, Joseph Harris, E. Kelsey, J. A. Macaulay and H. E. Sellers, all of Winnipeg.

The company operates the only sugar beet processing plant in Manitoba. The annual report showed net profit of $308,878 for the year ended March 31.

OIL RIGHTS COURT FIGHT TO APPEAL

WINNIPEG, June 28 (CP)—The Manitoba government today appealed a recent court decision that oil rights on a Portage La Prairie farm belonged to the farmer and not to the Crown.

The decision was given by Mr. Justice Samuel Freedman in Court of Queen's Bench. The land belongs to William Hiebert.

The judge ruled that the Crown retained the mineral rights in the original land sale in 1914 but not in subsequent sales. The issue arose when the district registrar at Portage La Prairie refused to file a caveat tendered by Canadian Superior Oil of California Limited. The judge ruled that the caveat registering the oil rights in the company's favor must be filed.

The province claims in its appeal that the judge erred in disregarding the "true spirit, interest and meaning of the Provincial Lands Act" and its express provisions.

Canada had 292 plants making leather footwear, by an official estimate in 1951.

Oil Production in Alberta Set Higher

EDMONTON, June 27 (CP)—The Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board today announced the July "allowable" oil production will be 194,358 barrels daily, an all-time high.

Board officials said summer demand for petroleum products was responsible for the increase of 5,177 barrels daily over the June allowable.

Practically all Alberta fields will be permitted to produce at a higher rate in July. The yield this July will be 36,867 barrels daily above July, 1951.

July allowables show the Redwater field has the largest with 35,577 barrels daily. Others are Leduc-Woodbend, 52,901 and Turner Valley with 7,000.

Appointment of Joe A. Krogseth to the position of sales manager has been announced by the Brackman-Ker Milling Co. Ltd. He started with the company in 1929 at New Westminster and was shortly after moved to Hanev and placed in charge of the branch. He occupied the position of manager there until 1939.

During that year he was transferred to the Nanaimo branch of the company, where he spent another three years as manager. Early in 1942 he was moved to Langley Prairie to manage the branch there. In 1949 he was placed in charge of the company's branches at Chilliwack, Rosedale, Sardis, Abbotsford, Langley Prairie and Cloverdale. Mr. Krogseth will continue to work out of New Westminster office.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG, June 28 (CP)—Prices of coarse grain futures generally showed an easier tone today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, reflecting selling prompted by good rains over the Prairie grain belt. Prices also reflected weakness in U.S. grain prices.

Fair support in barley was attributed to export account and there were some shipping purchases in oats. Rye received support on occasions from U.S. interest.

Trade showed the usual Saturday dullness. Prices of Class 2 wheat were down 2 cents; prices of L.W.A. wheat were unchanged.

Sharp Gains Feature Stock Market Trading

By BURKE CAHILL, Times Business Editor
Sharp bursts of activity featured nervous markets this week as traders followed strike news and industrial development prospects closely.

Selected issues attracted strong investment support at intervals during the week's trading and boosted otherwise sluggish markets.

BASE METALS
Interest in base metals came back strong at mid-week with an announcement of a swift turnabout in metal prices.

Lead prices jumped 2½ cents per pound after being cut a like amount the previous week and sparked a flurry of activity in the base metal stocks.

But investors backed away again on news of replacement of the tariff on lead by the United States.

Pacific Petroleum's strike in British Columbia pushed the stock for a moderate gain but buying enthusiasm was sporadic.

Albermont and Britalta also caught speculative interest. Gains, however, took later profit-taking.

Mackeno, a base metal issue, was the week's most active stock as it climbed irregularly following reports of substantial silver values.

Industrial activity continued unevenly within a narrow range of selected leading issues.

SEE CHANGE
Professional observers, however, predicted a change. Canadian markets, they said, appear to have fallen behind New York.

Prudential New Entry Into Sickness, Accident Field

VANCOUVER, June 28.—The immediate entry of the Prudential Insurance Co. of America into the sickness and accident field in Canada was announced today by Robert M. Green, the company's vice-president in charge of Canadian operations.

The program will be launched by more than one-third of the company's field offices in Canada next Monday, June 30, Mr. Green said. The remaining offices will move into the field as soon as their training is completed—with coverage expected to be extended to all of Canada by the end of July.

Mr. Green described the loss of income arising out of sickness and accident as "one of the major hazards" facing Canadian families today. "This financial loss runs into hundreds of millions of dollars annually," he said. "The new income protection contracts will provide from $50 to $750 a month to the family to replace lost income.

FIRST TIME
This is the first time that non-compensable sickness and accident insurance has been offered in Canada on a basis where premiums will be collected monthly at the homes of policy owners," Mr. Green declared. "Prudential is pioneering in this field much as it did 75 years ago in first offering industrial insurance to the working classes."

In addition to the monthly business, where premiums are collected in the home, the new S. and A. protection will be offered on a quarterly, semi-annual or annual premium-payment basis, with premiums mailed to the office. Coverage is provided against both loss of time as a result of sickness or accident and the financial drain of hospital and surgical expenses.

Record Shipment Seen From Lakehead Ports

PORT ARTHUR, June 28 (CP)—Transfer of about 50 iron ore carriers to the grain trade because of the United States steel strike may bring the heaviest peacetime movement of grain out of lakehead ports in history.

Shipments are pouring out of Port Arthur and Fort William this week at double the rate for June last year.

In the last two weeks they have totalled 33,500,000 bushels of all grains, statisticians at the Board of Grain Commissioners, Fort William office, reported today. This is more than twice the 1951 total of 15,500,000 bushels for the same period.

The C.N.R. ore dock here meanwhile is continuing shipments of Atikokan iron ore at about the same rate as last year.

An estimate of about 50 ships transferred from the ore to the grain trade came from Oliver Burnham, of Cleveland, Ohio, in Fort William today on his first visit to the lakehead.

Mr. Burnham, secretary of the Lake Carriers' Association, which represents owners of American bulk carriers, said one vessel will be placed in the grain trade as long as the steel strike lasts, and probably for a few days after it ends, since no stocks of ore will be immediately available for shipping.

Impact of the movement, which has grain terminals here working at peak capacity around the clock, will also be felt in the export market.

Total shipments of all grain out of lakehead ports in the crop year Aug. 1, 1950, to mid-June, 1951, was 190,000,000 bushels. Shipments for the first 10 months of the current crop year, from Aug. 1, 1951, to May 31, 1952, total 337,200,000.

Since shipments are running at the rate of 12,000,000 bushels a week, total flow of grain out of the lakehead for the crop year should reach close to the 400,000,000-bushel mark.

Cedar Shingle Group Officers

At the annual meeting recently of Consolidated Red Cedar Shingle Association of British Columbia the following directors were elected: H. V. Whittall, J. MacKenzie, W. Brownlee, S. Douglas, R. B. Horton, D. Johnston, W. H. Johnstone, G. W. Lobb, W. K. McCarter, W. H. McAllen, J. E. McNair, Chas. Plant, W. J. Pullin, C. C. Watson, H. Yewdale.

The secretary-manager gave a report of the activities of the shingle industry stressing trade promotion work on red cedar shingles.

He also reported that the membership comprised approximately 80 per cent of the shingle production in British Columbia.
